LIVE, WORK & PLAY AT MOSAIC
By Keith Loria
After almost two decades of hopes and dreams of rejuvenating the Merrifield area into a walk-friendly community with shops, restaurants and apartments, all the stars aligned last year, as the Mosaic District became a reality.

HILLBROOK INN & SPA
By Allison Chase Sutherland
Just head out Route 7 to the bucolic Scenic Byways and before you know it, you’ll realize you’ve arrived at the magical Hillbrook Inn & Spa. The long gravel lane will further slow your pace – and your pulse – but it might just speed up your imagination. It’s so refreshing you might want to do it twice.

PRIVATE SCHOOLS OF NORTHERN VIRGINIA
By Rick Mundy
Throughout the Northern Virginia area are several extraordinary private schools dedicated to superior learning across all grades. Whether a family is seeking rigorous instruction, more individual attention or specialized programs, there are private schools that offer opportunities that may not be readily available through public schools.

Local Real Estate Agent Honors Her Guarantee and Writes Seller a Check for $1,150,000

When Keri Shull makes a guarantee to her clients, she keeps her side of the deal.

This past fall, the Blazer family designed their dream home and locked in the sales price of their current home through Keri’s Guaranteed Sale Program. When the market shifted and their home did not sell, Keri honored her guarantee, purchased their home and made the process stress free!

Keri’s unique Guaranteed Sale Program guarantees the sale of your home in a mutually agreed upon timeframe at a price acceptable to you. That sounds like a great deal, but what’s the catch?

There is none...

If Keri can’t find a buyer within the timeframe and at the price agreed upon - she shoulders a higher level of accountability than the average agent - she’ll buy your home herself.

This program takes the stress and risk of selling your home completely off you, so you can sit back and let us do all of the work!

Unlike the average agent, Keri is able to offer these guarantees - and most importantly, keep her side of the deal - because she and her team sell more homes than any other single agent in the area. Because she sells more homes, she has more money and resources to dedicate towards marketing your home and getting it sold for top dollar.

Oftentimes, the average agent is working with multiple clients at a time, which means your time is being split between these other clients. Keri, on the other hand, has an experienced team of marketing experts and client support staff available and ready to walk you through the process and answer any questions you have along the way!

#1 Team in Arlington  #5 Team in Keller Williams Worldwide

Call Keri Today & Start Packing (703) 382-7711!

“I, personally, guarantee to find you the perfect home in a time frame and for a price acceptable to you, or I’ll sell your current home for free- GUARANTEED!”

At Virginia Hospital Center Physician Group Primary Care Tysons, we’re trying to make your healthcare easy. So you’ll find our lunchtime hours, same-day appointments, electronic prescriptions and in-house lab services make us the most convenient primary care available. Our doctors take the time to get to know you and understand your individual healthcare needs. We are now accepting new patients 10 years of age and older and accept most insurance plans, including Medicare. Find out more about how convenient healthcare can be at vhcphysiciangroup.com/tysons.
Happy New Year and welcome to the new “downtown” of the Washington Metropolitan Area.
And when we say new, we mean new. New shopping and dining districts like the Mosaic, the smorgasbord of new restaurants and entertainment venues here or arriving soon, new options for health and beauty, new and interesting places to visit and people to meet. Right here, in Tysons!

And with the addition to the Silver Line, our area’s merchants and service providers have a whole new clientele available to them just a few short steps away.

Have you spent any time this year at the Plaza at Tysons Corner Mall? Ice Skate? Had some chocolates at the German Market Place this holiday? Strolled along Strawberry Lane in the Mosaic District? This is not your father’s Tysons Corner.

Our writers and contributors had you in mind and heart for this issue. Mary Jeanne Cincotta has some ideas on romance for Valentine’s Day, Rick Mundy spent some time at the new Cypress Fitness and The Sylvestery in McLean, and Linda Barrett teaches us how to create our own wine tasting notes.

Say “Cheese” and smile with Keith Loria as he takes us through some thoughts on cheese. And talk of smiles, Renee Sklarew explores the world of “Kid Friendly Restaurants” for those of us whose dining options are decided by our kids. We know you’ll chuckle at Jan King’s thoughts on giving up smoking.

Renee also reviewed Sea Pearl in Falls Church and Shamshiry in Vienna—giving us two more exciting reasons to celebrate our town!

Our friend and valued contributor, Marcia McAllister of The Dulles Corridor Metrorail Project has been an integral part of our mission to bring our readership the updates of our new city. Marcia has been battling some illness and we hope to have her back on our pages soon. We send our prayers for a full speedy recovery. Marcia, we miss you.

I would like to take a moment to thank our advertisers and supporters for our success in 2014. We feel very fortunate to know and be working with so many wonderful people—how lucky are we? I would also like to thank and congratulate our artists and writers for the successful launch of Le Nouveau Moi, our new purse companion beauty publication. Our publisher, Mary Jeanne Cincotta, has raised the bar for us once again and we are grateful for her talents…we will do our best to do her proud.

And a big “Thank You” to our readers who keep us on the kitchen table and support so many of our local merchants and service providers. You rock!

Have a healthy and Happy New Year. Cheers!

The Ying Quartet
The Barns at Wolf Trap
8pm | $35

Arguably the finest string quartet in the US, the Ying Quartet occupies a position of unique prominence in the classical music world, combining brilliantly communicative performances with a fearlessly imaginative view of chamber music in today’s world. Composed of violinists Ayano Ninomiya and Janet Ying, violist Philip Ying, and cellist David Ying, they have been hailed for their technical mastery, musical insight, vivid imagination, and tireless enthusiasm.

JANUARY 16
JAMMIN’ JAVA AND THINKGEEK PRESENT PAUL AND STORM
Jammin’ Java
7:30pm | $16
Paul and Storm have been performing as comedy music duo since 2004. Before that, they were one half of a cappella band Da Vinci’s Notebook. In addition to touring as “Paul and Storm”, they’re the evil geniuses (along with Wil Wheaton and Adam Savage) of the nerd-oriented variety show w00tstock; co-conspirators in JoCo Cruise Crazy; and are co-creators and stars of the webseries “LearningTown”, on the Geek and Sundry YouTube Channel.

JANUARY 16
THE IGUANAS
The Barns at Wolf Trap
8pm | $25
These Bourbon Street party-starters mix New Orleans jazz, R&B soul, and traditional Mexican melodies to cook up their eclectic musical gumbo. Combining New Orleans jazz, Chicago blues, and Mexican conjunto music, the Iguanas include Rod Hodges (guitar, accordion, vocals), Joe Cabral (saxophone, bajo sexto, vocals), René Coman (bass), and Doug Garrison (drums).

JANUARY 16-17
THE INFAMOUS STRINGDUSTERS
The State Theatre
8pm | $22-27
Dismiss labels. Forget trying to fit into a scene. Be true and play your songs. That encompasses the prevailing spirit of Let It Go, the fifth studio album from Grammy-nominated bluegrass expansionists The Infamous Stringdusters. The new effort, released April 1 on the band’s own High Country Recordings, finds the band on firm footing, at ease with an evolving sound that defies categorization. It’s acoustic music, sure, but not the kind you’ll hear from any other band. Roots can be traced but boundaries don’t exist.

JANUARY 17
LIVINGSTON TAYLOR
The Barns at Wolf Trap
7:30pm | $25
Lauded for his “intimate and laid-back musical approach” (AllMusic.com), this timeless singer/songwriter is treasured for his warm demeanor and well-crafted folk/pop songs like “I’ll Come Running.”

JANUARY 18
SHENANDOAH RUN
Jammin’ Java
7pm | $20
Shenandoah Run presents the songs and sounds of American folk music, with an occasional infusion of songs from other lands and from the worlds of country and bluegrass. From the esoteric to the toe-tappingly familiar, their songs are treated to a lush multi-part vocal harmony and skillful instrumental backing that defines what is becoming their instantly recognizable sound. They present arrangements that are fresh, varied, and unique, while keeping with the spirit of the folk-music sound and they deliver it all with a chemistry that delights both audiences and the performers themselves.

JANUARY 21 AND 22

DAVE MASON

The Barns at Wolf Trap
8pm | $45

This prolific guitarist and former frontman of the legendary English band Traffic has rocked out with Eric Clapton, Jimi Hendrix, George Harrison, and more throughout his illustrious career. After cofounding Traffic, Dave Mason left the group to pursue other endeavors: throughout the late ’60s and early ’70s, he joined Delaney & Bonnie and Friends, served as a guitarist in Eric Clapton’s band Derek and the Dominos, recorded with George Harrison, and formed a duo with Cass Elliot. For a short time during the early ’90s, Mason joined Fleetwood Mac.

JANUARY 23

THE FABULOUS DIALTONES ROCKIN’ AND DANCIN’ PARTY

Jammin’ Java
8pm | $12-20

The FDTs return to Jammin’ Java to perform a rocking, dancing night of music with their full horn section. Their rock set consists of song from the golden era of classic rock and roll. The combination of their signature vocal harmonies and the FDT horns make for an evening of new and old memories with covers from Chicago, The Beatles, Doobie Brothers, Steely Dan, Santana, Blood Sweat & Tears and many more, including a number of Motown classics and originals.

CANELLAKIS-BROWN DUO

The Barns at Wolf Trap
8pm | $35

Both members of this duo – cellist Nick Canellakis and composer/pianist Michael Brown – have impressive musical pedigrees and credentials. More important is the way audiences respond to their intense, impassioned music making. The program will feature works by Beethoven and Chopin alongside works arranged by Mr. Canellakis and composed by Mr. Brown.

THE SMITHEREENS

The State Theatre
9pm | $21

Dressed in leather, brandishing heavy guitars, and an unabashed fetish for British Invasion pop, the Smithereens were an anomaly in the American college rock scene of the late ’80s. They came onto the national radar in 1988, and the first single, “Only a Memory,” not only became a college and modern rock hit, but it crossed over to album-rock stations as well. The Smithereens made their attempt at big-time album-rock success with their third album, “11”. Hiring producer Ed Stasium brought a heavier guitar sound, which made “A Girl Like You” a Top 40 hit, sending “11” to gold status, and solidifying their spot in our memories.

JANUARY 24

ARI HEST

The Barns at Wolf Trap
7:30pm | $25

This heartfelt acoustic singer/songwriter channels “poignant, acoustic reverie” (USA Today) with his smoky, soothing voice and introspective lyrics. Hest’s songs have been featured in TV shows like Private Practice, Army Wives, and One Tree Hill. He also scored the film, Dreamriders, which won numerous independent film awards.

Dental implants have more benefits than any other tooth replacement option. Not only do they look, feel, and act like your natural teeth, but they are also just as strong as them. Dental implants preserve the aesthetics and function of the surrounding facial structures and never decay. Unlike other common tooth replacement options, dental implants can last a lifetime, making them the most cost-effective option. Dr. Gocke is a board certified Oral and Maxillofacial Surgeon whose extensive training makes him an expert in dental implant placement.

All Good Presents Donna The Buffalo
The State Theatre
9pm | $17–20
“Donna the Buffalo is from central New York State, not Louisiana, but this widely loved quintet has woven that joyful, hip-shaking zydeco pulse into the DNA of its sound, and leaders Jeb Puryear and Tara Nevins have wrapped that core vibe with hopeful, mellow lyrics.”
--Music City Roots, Craig Havighurst
The group draws its inspiration from a cherished part of the American heritage: the old-time music festivals of the south that drew entire towns and counties together. “Those festivals were so explosive, and the community and the feeling of people being with each other, that’s the feeling we were shooting for in our music,” Puryear says. “Donna the Buffalo is an extension of the joy we’ve found.”

Jammin’ Java
7:30pm | $15-20

Eilen Jewell is the queen of the minor key. Sad songs are her wealth and finery. But beware, savvy observer. Do not confuse the singer and her songs. Eilen’s fans have marveled at her warmth, unique wit, and onstage humor. Her song writing is a blend of influences from early blues, rockabilly and surf-noir, to 1960s era rock and roll. Her repertoire includes everything from up-tempo rockers that swing to stunning, lyrically poetic ballads.

THE NIGHTHAWKS
Jammin’ Java
7pm | $20

Founded in the Washington, D.C. area in 1972, the ‘Hawks’ were a roots band before anyone had come up with the term. Their mix of... blues, rock, rockabilly, soul and swing appeals to a widely diverse audience, built over years of touring throughout the United States, Europe and Japan. The band's current lineup features founding member Mark Wenner on harp and vocals, Paul Bell on guitar and vocals, Johnny Castle on bass and vocals and, on drums and vocals, Mark Stutso, who replaced longtime member Pete Ragusa.

DINER
Signature Theatre
7:30pm or 8pm | $37-80
Nine-time Grammy Award Winner Sheryl Crow and Academy Award-winning original screenwriter Barry Levinson makes a stunning debut as writers with the world premiere musical adaptation of the landmark movie, Diner. Christmas, Baltimore: 1959. A circle of childhood friends reunite for the upcoming wedding of one of them. Well, only if his fiancée passes a football trivia test. From the comfort of their all-night diner, the men, now in their early-twenties, confront the realities of adulthood: marriage, careers, money and the ever-mysterious opposite sex. But no matter where life takes them, they know they’re welcome back at the diner, the one place they’ll always belong. Infused with swinging 1950s rock and roll sound, three-time Tony Award-winning director and choreographer Kathleen Marshall joins Crow and Levinson to transform Diner’s groundbreaking evocation of burgeoning adulthood and friendship for the stage.

AQUILA THEATRE: THE TEMPEST
George Mason Center for the Arts
8pm | $26-44
Shakespeare's ultimate commentary on life and art, vengeance and forgiveness is unique among his work and is widely considered to be one of his finest. The acclaimed British-American touring company, Aquila Theatre, brings to our stage this tale of shipwrecks, magical powers, vengeance, forgiveness, and enlightenment. The Bard’s tale is the story of Prospero, the Duke of Milan and self-taught sorcerer, who was put to sea with his daughter, Miranda, but found exile on an exotic and mystical island. Seeking justice against those who usurped him, and with retribution finally within his grasp, his relationship with his child is tested when she falls in love with the son of one of the conspirators. Prospero’s memorable soliloquy and epilogue, in which he vows to give up magic, is thought to be Shakespeare’s retirement speech. “If energy be the food of Shakespeare, then Aquila Theatre serves up a smorgasbord.” (Boston Globe)

JASMINE GUY AND THE AVERY SHARPE TRIO: RAISIN’ CANE: A HARLEM RENAISSANCE ODYSSEY
George Mason Center for the Arts Concert Hall
8pm | $29-48
By the 1920s, Harlem had become the heart of the African-American community in New York, and was a breeding ground for intense creativity. This outpouring of artistic expression became known as the Harlem Renaissance. In an extraordinary performance, renowned actress, singer and dancer Jasmine Guy, along with the acclaimed Avery Sharpe Trio, honors these legendary artists, who struggled against racial inequality, prejudice, and segregation. Weaving together text, song, movement, and imagery into a panoramic experience, Guy and the trio transport audiences to this prolific period through the voices of Langston Hughes, Countee Cullen, Zora Neale Hurston and W.E.B. Du Bois. Ms. Guy is well known for her extensive work on stage, film, and television, including her starring role on “The Cosby Show” spin-off, “A Different World.” Mr. Sharpe is considered one of the greatest jazz bassists of his generation.

THE TURN OF THE SCREW
Creative Cauldron
Fri-Sat 8pm | Sunday 2pm and 7pm
This world premiere musical by the talented creative team of Stephen Gregory Smith and Matt Conner is adapted from the classic novella by Henry James. In Bly, the imposing country estate, a sensitive young governess quickly learns that there are dark secrets surrounding the two young orphans that have been placed in her care. A foreboding sense of evil begins to envelop her, and she is soon convinced that the children are being influenced by sinister forces present at Bly. But is she imagining this? Are the apparitions that she sees real? In this fresh new take on one of literature’s most gripping ghost stories, Smith and Conner take us on a thrilling psychological journey turning the screw tighter with every twist of the story. This is the first installment in Creative Cauldron’s five-year “Bold New Works for Intimate Stages” commissioning project.

DOUBT, A PARABLE
BY JOHN PATRICK SHANLEY
1st Stage
Fri 8pm | Sat 2pm and 8pm | Sun 2pm and 7pm | $15-28
Recipient of the 2005 Pulitzer Prize and Best Play Tony Award®
Set in 1964 against the backdrop of an America in the midst of change, a progressive young priest’s conduct with a student comes under question by the parish school’s principal, a veteran nun twice his age. But with no proof, can there be certainty? As questions begin to plague her, Sister Aloysius finds herself consumed by doubt in an ancient institution that once provided the comforts of community, discipline and faith. A powerhouse drama enclosed in an eloquent and provocative investigation of truth and consequences.

PINKALICIOUS
The Alden Theater
2 pm | $15-20
Ages 4+. Pinkalicious can’t stop eating pink cupcakes despite warnings from her parents. Her pink indulgence lands her at the doctor’s office with Pinkititis, an affliction that turns her pink from head to toe - a dream come true for this pink loving enthusiast. But when her hue goes too far, only Pinkalicious can figure out a way to get out of this predicament.

R.S.V.P.

The McLean Community Players present 13—a hilarious coming-of-age rock musical with music and lyrics by Tony Award®-winning composer Jason Robert Brown and a book by Dan Elish and Robert Horn. When Evan Goldman is forced to move from New York City to a small town in Indiana after his parents’ divorce, he must establish his popularity and avoid an “un-cool” label among his fellow middle school students. Even though the show features an entirely teenage cast, the stories and emotions in this memorable musical are timeless.
LIVE, WORK & PLAY AT MOSAIC

BY KEITH LORIA

by Alex Zilberman

by Bonnie Sen

by Anne Chan

by Dan Cunningham
After almost two decades of hopes and dreams of rejuvenating the Merrifield area into a walk-friendly community with shops, restaurants and apartments, all the stars aligned last year, as the Mosaic District became a reality.

Offering an array of reasonably priced food at hip restaurants, a little entertainment, and trendy low- and high-end shopping opportunities, the Mosaic District is a great place to spend the day.

“It’s a really strong community and not your typical shopping center,” says Steve Boyle, managing director of EDENS, which develops, owns and operates Mosaic. “We have people living there, plus we have so many small business owners who give back to the community and are really invested in it, I think that’s what really sets it apart.”

Currently, Mosaic is comprised of 50 retailers, 40 of which are small businesses; 21 dining options; a 148-key boutique hotel; 525 apartment units; 112 townhomes; an 8-screen Angelika Arthouse cinema; 73,000 square feet of Class A office space; and its signature Strawberry Park with big-screen viewing.

David Reiner, a long-time Reston resident, is pleased to see something thrilling in what he calls “a once suburban wasteland between Falls Church and Fairfax.”

“Bringing a European vibe, complete with outdoor art festivals and farmer’s markets to the area is an exciting and wonderful thing,” he says. “It’s a cool concept that is working great.”

With so many great retailers and restaurants, Mosaic tries to tie a theme together each season and many of those who live and work in the area take part. For example, in the fall, it was all about food and diversity. In winter, businesses highlighted the holidays.

In January and February, Mosaic will be focusing on health, fitness and wellness. This was chosen as a number of fitness-based retailers will be opening, including Spark Yoga, SolidCore and Zengo Cycle.

“Sometimes things fall in place and we had three significant fitness businesses opening within a month or two, so we thought that this would be a great theme for the months,” Boyle says. “People are really focused on fitness and health in the New Year with resolutions, so it’s really the perfect time.”

A LITTLE HISTORY

Originally referred to as the Merrifield Town Center project, the Mosaic District was made possible by great work from the Greater Merrifield Business Association, who fought for the project for years.

“The goal was to make an urban setting, one where people could walk and gather and go to great shops and restaurants,” says Ed Hogg, president of the Greater Merrifield Business Association, who has been in the Merrifield area since 1984. “Our goal was to bring in a diverse amount of businesses and professionals and more people are going to want to live in proximity to all of this.”

The genesis of all of the development activity dates back to the mid-’90s, when Bob Mortensen, then-president of the Greater Merrifield Business Association, began a series of town meetings with then-Supervisor Gerry Connolly.

“We got together and wondered what we could do about Merrifield. It’s in a fantastic location, has major hospitals, a golf course, metro station, and kind of an industrial area,” Mortensen says now. “At our town meetings we got some ideas and learned that people were jazzed by it.”

As the awareness of Merrifield conditions and potentials became known, Connolly appointed a 28-person task force to come up with a comprehensive plan, with Mortensen serving as chair.

“We met for three years and developed a sound strategic plan and essentially we wanted to develop some sort of town center that would identify the core of Merrifield,” he says. “We wanted it to be traffic neutral and wanted to maintain as many community services as possible.”

Shortly after the board adopted the plan in June 2001, there was almost $2 billion of development and improvement dollars committed to what would become a new main street. But things were halted due to the recession and other financial worries.

Over the ensuing dozen years, Supervisor Linda Smyth became a relentless champion of the plan. She was on the original task force and graduated to the Planning Commission and then to Supervisor. She was a big part in making Mosaic a reality.

SHOPPING AND DINING

Mosaic is very selective in the type of stores that can come in.

“We are very invested in what Mosaic will become. We are getting a lot of people from Arlington and the surrounding counties coming by and it’s one of the most affluent and highly educated areas in the country so our customer base is very sophisticated,” Boyle says. “We see very savvy consumers, so we can’t just offer the same chains, we look to offer something special.”

A lot of the stores were selected because they are unique, maybe having one or two other locations in the DC Metro area. Others are one-of-a-kind, or offer something completely different. Meanwhile, popular downtown restaurants such as Ted’s Bulletin, Red Apron, Matchbox, Dolcezza and DGS Delicatessen all have a strong following but not too much saturation in the market.

“We are always growing and we have some pop-up concepts that have recently come in and some of them may become permanent businesses,” Boyle says. “There will be more development there in the next year so more opportunities will become available for retailers, as well.”

LIVE AND PLAY

With thousands of people taking advantage of the housing components offered, the Mosaic District is becoming the ideal place to live and play. It offers unique experiences (such as the piano that sits outside one store with the words “play me” inviting people to stop and play), plus great family experiences as well. There’s a giant chess board for people to play, large benches for people to picnic on, communal tables to enjoy lunches, and a big screen in the middle of it all that shows movies all summer and fall. A recent showing of Frozen attracted thousands and this summer the screen was used to show World Cup games and the lawn was packed to capacity.

“Mosaic elevates the community experience to a new standard by creating a vibrant, sophisticated environment that connects families and friends together,” Boyle says. “This unique district is created through a hand-selected mix of retailers and restaurants, intelligent urban design and our passion for enabling authentic community engagement.”

Mosaic includes a hand-selected mix of DC’s top independent fashion boutiques, inspired culinary options, healthy grocers, an art house cinema, and premier national retailers. It brings all of these together to create the DC Metro’s most innovative retail and entertainment community.

“Dial down the crazy” – if you happen to have seen the movie, The Judge, this was one of the great lines! The expression can definitely apply to the holiday season…especially in Northern Virginia!! Each year I read, and write, a plethora of articles about how to keep the pounds off, how to eat well and not junk out for four weeks, and how to keep exercising during all the holiday shopping, traffic, and stress! Wow!! Tall order. With the holidays over, you are now getting back into your routine, but you want to be different. It is 2015 and you want to feel better…more confident…more fit…more energetic…more alive! You generally start out with great intentions and enthusiasm, but by February or March, the novelty has worn off and you find yourself slipping back into behaviors you pledged to be purged from your life. How can you prevent that common pattern? Support. Develop daily support.

In over 25 years in wellness and fitness, I have never had a client say to me, “I wish I would have stuffed myself yesterday,” or “Darn, I wish I didn’t exercise yesterday,” or “I feel so much better about myself when I live like a slug for days on end.” I have never heard it. Even though people know that eating well and living an active life allows them to live more fully, to live with more confidence, and to be more present for themselves and others…the couch and junky comfort food can still continue to win. Amazing right?

It is no secret that obesity has become a serious and very costly health problem (according to the CDC, the estimated annual medical cost of obesity in the U.S. was $147 billion in 2008 U.S. dollars; the medical costs for people who are obese were $1,429 higher than those of normal weight). The focus of this article is not obesity, but I want to arm you with some facts about where the U.S. is headed and the effect it has on our health care costs.

On page 42 are the obesity trends from the CDC. As time went on, it was necessary to create new levels, of obesity. Scary.

So how do you stay healthy? What can you do differently? Do you want to avoid starting each day feeling regretful and trying to ignore it? You can. Start today. Right now. This minute. Make the decision. Stay in the moment. Step by step, meal by meal. You may have started to do all these things in the past to get healthy or to stay healthy during the holidays and into the new year, but it didn’t last. Again, what can you do differently?

Support. Create and reach for support. Technology makes daily connecting very convenient and easy. Look around you. Who has similar health goals as you? Whom do you know that truly desires to lose that holiday 7? Family members? Co-workers? Your mate? Friends? If you are involved in hobbies (i.e., book club, bridge club), maybe someone there?

Once you have found two or three people, create a small circle of people and have each member decide how this process can work for them. Make a daily commitment for at least 60 days of what you are going to do or not do that day. Most importantly, make a commitment to contact at least one or all people in the group BEFORE you break the commitment. For instance, I commit each day to two other people to “no white.”  “No white” for me means no sugar and no white starches. When either sugar or starches starts talking to me, I text, call, or email someone that my “drug of choice,” sugar, is calling my name. I may talk about how I am feeling or why I think eating a bunch of sugar is some kind of solution to my angst… which I know it is not. Another person in the group is putting down cigarettes. The other is committing to her Weight Watchers’ points each day. There is something about committing to others that has made living true to my goals much easier. We all have experienced a greater level of success and for a longer period of time. THIS WORKS!! This has been the missing link to ongoing success. To know that those two ladies are there and in my corner has helped me tremendously. Give it a go. Try something different. You do not have to wake up with regret!

Building an Art Career

Ever since she can remember, 58-year-old Jean Sausele Knodt has worked with some form of art. It started with drawing, transitioned into painting on canvas, and throughout all these forms there was always some component of constructing things nestled in.

“The building of things is something that I remember doing very young,” she says. “That’s when I would lose track of time, spending hours to find sticks to make structures among tree roots and inlets of lake-side rocks. When I later reflected on what I did as a 5- or 6-year-old child and into the middle school years, I came to understand, even after many years fully invested, that working with paint on canvas wasn’t right for me.”

While pursuing a fine arts degree at Skidmore College, Jean drew directly from life to uncover gesture and possibilities of sequence and transition of line, value, form, planes and contour. She reflects now that this was another way of building, here on the two-dimensional plane. Those interests were further engaged, with the additional focus on color and paint, while studying for her MFA at the University of Pennsylvania under artists Neil Welliver, Rudy Burckhardt, Yvonne Jacquette, Janet Fish and Alex Katz, and while at the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture under Francesco Clemente and Judy Pfaff.

“I came to understand that establishing a process-based, series approach strengthens the work as a whole; and drives it forward. Each individual piece or “product” then becomes a statement of an enriched process,” she says. “Essential for that process to manifest itself is to establish the trust and personal authority needed to visualize and orchestrate a rich set of working elements—ones from which ideas can grow. Then it’s just about consistent time in the studio and letting the ongoing work continue to reveal and inform possibilities.”

Critical to her development as an artist has been her work as an educator, both at the university and K-12 levels. Knodt says she has been teaching in one form or another since she was 16 and her focus on developing open-inquiry learning practices for children spearheaded her own exploration of natural curiosity, “sustained absorption,” and finding what Milhay Czikszentmihalyi calls “Flow.”

This personal investigation resulted in a departure from realism, first through working with printmaking, and to her current painting assemblages, which started in 2009.

“I always saw my work with the Inquiry Lab as an extension to my work as an artist: teaching and implementing a process-based thinking arena,” Knodt says. “The many years I spent developing the ‘Think Tank’ for my son’s school, and then writing a book about the program, essentially set the stage for a new beginning with my work in the studio.”

She started questioning where she was headed with her work.

“I was finally ready to open up and ask a few ‘essential questions’ about myself and my work; questions driven by what I saw children in the open-inquiry environment do with such vitality: What are you curious about? Children know; I once knew,” she says. “Setting aside all the education, vital skills, remarkable ideas, guidance, voices and expectations, I asked myself, “what are your core intuitive interests? What led you toward this fine art path in the first place? What do you want ask about and explore?” Once I touched base with the dispositional side of things, it wasn’t long before my studio work opened up and gained the vital pulse I was looking for.”
That’s why in the last five years, her work has become much more sculptural in nature.

For example, in Knodt’s current work on display at the Atrium Gallery at the McLean Project for the Arts, still with a big nod to painting, Knodt shows works made of cut-out pieces of plywood and Masonite, painted in oil and arranged in nest-like structures.

“McLean Project for the Arts is truly a remarkable venue to see great and challenging art, and for me, having a show in the Atrium Gallery—is like coming home. My family and I lived within walking distance to the center, attended classes and events. Our son has even shown a piece in the Ramp Gallery in a Fairfax County student show,” she says. “I’ve worked as a scenic stage designer at the Alden Theatre and have drawn in the model sessions. It’s additionally quite exciting that nearly 2000 students of Fairfax County will be attending MPA this month since the lab program I developed was right here in McLean at Kent Gardens Elementary.”

Based on flora and fauna found in landscapes, her artwork sorts and assembles fragments and color into a newly personalized sense of place.

“What I find I do is pull in the various cut pieces and set them into play,” she says. “The activity can be very animated and dance-like, yet also quite a wrestle, with color going in and being wiped out, until finally a piece appears to somehow settle.”

In 2014 Knodt became part of the Longview Gallery, and her work in the New Year, New Artists exhibition was one of the most talked about—even earning a big write-up in The Washington Post. She continues to work with the gallery and looks forward to what’s ahead in the upcoming year.

“I am so thankful to see the work welcomed in and part of the Longview Gallery—one of the most open and engaging art spaces I have seen in Washington,” she says. “I can sit on the steps in that 9000 square foot space (once a car dealership complete with ramp) very happy to soak up the atmosphere of the place—the artists’ work on view and the rich patina of old paint on the high concrete walls.”

An interesting part of her process is working with a saw to create the images she wants.

“I now draw with saws. The feel and connection to contours and gesture happens right there at the blade,” she says. “In addition, I set fluid lacquer-like gesture lines on top of the cut painted pieces. New to the mix have been cast cement pieces and metals, which together with the hollow core and laminated Masonite pieces, are assembled with dowel rods and stainless steel bolts and screws.”

Knodt has a lot to be excited about in 2015. Her one-person show at the Atrium Gallery (running Jan. 8 to March 7) followed by the Alchemical Vessels Exhibition + Benefit at the Joan Hisaoka Healing Arts Gallery, DC (March 27 to May 22); then a one-person show at the Ward Center for Contemporary Art in Petersburg, Va. (September and October); and of course, she will continue showing at the Longview Gallery.

“As with any life effort, if you uncover and ask the questions that bring you closer to your instinctual ways of being, you gain the vital energy needed to open up innovative thinking and doing. Sometimes it is just a tweak here or there that’s needed to set the stage,” she says. “It intrigues me to set a group of fragments “out for a spin” and search for new ways they can connect and come together. Indeed, I am thankful that this work has led me to both celebrate and build understandings with all that whirls about in my life.”

True fans of the Smithereens know that there’s plenty of music to listen to if you just do a little searching. For example, in October, iTunes released “The Smithereens Live at the Roxy,” a live recording of the legendary Carteret band’s first-ever Los Angeles concert, with 19 incredible tracks.

Earlier in 2014, the band released a collection of 23 covers from the likes of T.Rex, The Who, Bruce Springsteen and The Kinks—available on the band’s website, as well as the iTunes store.

Before that, there was loads of music over the past dozen years, highlighted by the band’s first attempt of new music with Smithereens 2011, since 1999’s God Save the Smithereens.

“We still put out a lot of albums, it’s just that nothing with much original material,” says Pat DeNizio, founder and leader of the group. “I had done a solo album a couple of years ago which was sort of a stealth Smithereens album with everyone except [drummer] Dennis [Diken], who wasn’t available, so it’s not as though we have been inactive.”

Those following closely know that the Smithereens also released a lot since 2000. There were several well-received live albums, a greatest hits anthology, a Christmas album and three widely popular tribute albums: Meet The Smithereens and B-Sides, both Beatles tributes, and The Smithereens Play Tommy.

On Friday, January 23, the Smithereens will be returning to the State Theater in Falls Church to play a show full of fan favorites and some surprises from many of these recordings.
“We work very hard to keep things “us.” We’re one of the few bands left to plug the guitars directly into the amps,” DeNizio said. “At the same time, every night is something different and the sound isn’t entirely what you would hear on the recording.”

It’s been quite the ride for DiNizio and his band. When he was 13, DiNizio worked on his dad’s garbage truck, and spent nearly two decades earning an honest living while trolling away in music with his high school friends Jim Babjak, Mike Mesaros and Dennis Diken in the basement of his New Jersey home.

Calling themselves the Smithereens, the band had a sound reminiscent of the Beatles and brought ‘60s power pop to the ‘80s. Their first performance was in Hillside, N.J., in March 1980, and over the next five years they released popular EPs “Girls About Town” and “Beauty and Sadness.”

They came onto the national radar in 1988, and the first single, “Only a Memory,” not only became a college and modern rock hit, but it crossed over to album-rock stations as well. Soon after, they hit it big with chart-topping tunes “Blood and Roses” and “A Girl Like You.”

“I was 31 when we hit, and we didn’t just open the door, we kicked it down,” DiNizio says. “I’ve met a lot of young kids who made it right away and they have no idea what it’s like to live in the real world and have real responsibilities. For us, we appreciated everything that was happening and aimed to be the best we could.”

In addition to touring regularly, DeNizio and his bandmates spend a lot of time pursuing other opportunities. In addition to launching solo careers and playing with other bands, DiNizio himself spent a few years in our area, working for XM Satellite radio.

“I was living in an 1863 house with a bunch of misfits in D.C. proper, performing occasionally at local venues, including the State Theatre. I really enjoyed my time in the area,” he says. “I played a number of solo shows at the State and it’s a great venue. Last year the Smithereens played there and it’s somewhere that I feel at home.”

The Smithereens have been plugging away for decades, which has left DiNizio with a wealth of anecdotes and behind-the-scenes dish and gave him the idea for a one-man show, “Confessions of a Rock Star,” which began in Las Vegas and now plays weekly at the Langosta Lounge in Asbury Park, NJ.

“I think the show offers the audience something they can’t find anywhere else,” DiNizio says. “It’s real rock and roll, not watered down by any stretch of the imagination, in addition to being the story of a guy who was a garbage man for his whole life and then woke up one morning and had a hit song on the radio.”

During the show, a live band performs the hits that shaped DiNizio’s childhood, paying tribute to his musical heroes such as The Beatles and Buddy Holly, and also playing select tunes from the Smithereens. Video screens show rare footage and photos that accompany the musical journey from his earliest roots in New Jersey.

“The best thing is that I can get out whenever I need to do a Smithereens show, so it’s really the best of both worlds,” he says. “We have great fans—really I should call them supporters—and they have followed us all along and we’re going to continue taking them on our journey.”

Once upon a time, there was a magical and charming inn called Hillbrook, and it was very, very good indeed.

Yes, once upon a time, there was indeed a charming little inn called Hillbrook, hidden in the mysterious wilderness of West Virginia, but as fortune would have it, you don’t have to go back in time to get there. Just head out Route 7 to the bucolic Scenic Byways, wander a little further over hill and dale past the woodlands and craggy rock outcroppings so typical of the rugged West Virginia landscape, and before you know it, you’ll realize you’ve already arrived, in about an hour – not a century – at the magical Hillbrook Inn & Spa. The long gravel lane will further slow your pace – and your pulse – but it might just speed up your imagination. It’s so refreshing you might want to do it twice.

As you approach the Main House, you will be greeted by an idyllic little pond edged by reeds and cattails. It almost winks at you. Hillbrook is a living, breathing fairy tale, with its stately English Tudor manor, perfect for romance, a transporting spa experience, quintessential tranquility, or even a memorable mother-daughter getaway. Imagine, if you will, arriving by coach or horse carriage. I know the children can. Let their imaginations soar; let their feet roam. Play a giant game of chess, loll away the time in a hammock, or skip over a quaint curved bridge. Swing on a tree swing from a giant walnut tree at the edge of Bullskin Run, which leads to the ivy-covered Spring House constructed back in the 1700s, but which provided spring water to Hillbrook up until 2005. Just beyond the fence, you’ll discover a horse grazing quietly in the pasture beyond.

Hillbrook Inn cascades down a natural limestone ridge like a babbling brook meandering playfully down a hillside. Set on 17 acres – 30 acres total across three properties where you can also choose to stay (tough choice) – its half-timbered façades of stucco and stone masonry, steep gabled roofs with dormers, and multiple chimneys belie its Tudor influence. Adorned throughout with European furnishings and art, Hillbrook is elegant, refined, timeless…

Marcy Deck, resident innkeeper, lovingly articulates that Hillbrook is “refined without losing the heart and soul of the place. Everybody takes care of it as if it’s our own. And they take care of the guests as if they’re family too.” This is a place you never want to leave. In fact, just this October, Innkeepers Carissa and Chris Zanella celebrated 10 years at Hillbrook… and counting.

The first owner, General Frank Bamford, was originally mesmerized by the guiles of Tudor style while in Normandy, France after the First World War, and his treasured estate was constructed during the 1920s. Some of the original Model T Fords were once parked in the garage which is now the tavern, as General Bamford and Henry Ford were lifelong friends. Seek out hidden nooks, narrow passageways, and winding staircases; devices or ‘riddles’ were often incorporated to demonstrate wit and delight visitors. It’s like a never-ending secret you want to keep exploring forever.

The gracious and polished Ricardo will welcome you to the rustic yet elegant Bullskin Tavern, with its brass banister and snug interior. Wrap your fingers around a mug of hot apple cider (add a little spike of rum to make it a hot toddy) on chillier days, or the signature Hillbrook Bellini – Italian prosecco, ruby red grapefruit juice, and cranberry juice – in the summery months. Ah, quite refreshing, full of antioxidants – and bubbles too! What more could one ask for?

How about some history? The benevolent and well-versed Ricardo will gladly oblige. He paints a vivid picture of the life and times of the fabled Hillbrook. This sprawling 2,700-acre tract was originally owned by George Washington’s family. As a surveyor for Lord Fairfax, young George was keenly aware of the lands available for purchase. Consequently, his younger brother Charles Washington settled here in a hunting lodge built in 1762, hence the neighboring Charles Town.

Replenish yourself with breakfast on the bright Sun Porch with an orange blossom spice tea. Enjoy a respite in the parlor or the reading room, tickle the ivories in the tavern, or gather around the cozy hearth for a lively chat which such settings often inspire. A three- or five-course dinner in a historical manor by firelight is, of course, always a great privilege. Not to mention that Chef Justin is “poetry in motion.” Afterwards, head out to the fire pit just behind the Main House and sink deep into a sturdy wooden Adirondack chair complete with your s’mores kit and a quilt from the house to keep you nice and toasty. Out here in the countryside, marvel at the magnitude of the stars in the night sky. If you opt to stay at the Hawthorn House, you can engage in some celestial stargazing with the telescope in the solarium, as an immensity of stars fills the space beyond the stratosphere. Trust me, you’ll sleep well tonight, sinking into the luxurious beds of the inn.

Settle in one of the eclectic guest rooms in the Main House. A stroll down a lighted stone path will lead you to the cottages, set among the evergreens. All are quaint little chambers, with gas log fireplaces, double whirlpool tubs, and private porches overlooking the vast lawn; the Summer Cottage and Winter Cottage have king-sized beds, with the Winter Cottage enjoying the best view. Impeccable touches such as a tiny beveled glass, wrought-iron peekaboo door hole to welcome in fresh air delights both the eye and the senses. This secluded haven is nestled among draping conifers interspersed among old-growth trees – trees which have seen history. What happened here over the centuries? Sometimes I wish I could ask the ancient trees.

The Gate House

Just near the gravel entrance to the grounds is the Gate House, which houses the Serenity Suite, a very comfy nook perched over the Gate House Spa. Bathed in earth tones of slate and sand, it enjoys a large oval soaking tub adorned by a Tiffany-style lamp, a modern gas log fireplace, and even its own private sauna right in the room! Wake up to a cup of tea in a signature Hillbrook mug on your own little deck, gazing out over deer quietly grazing at forest edge. The Gate House Spa is that restful space you’ve been seeking for so long. Polarity with Light and Sound with Board-certified Polarity Practitioner Jenna Newsome of Transformative Energy Healing is a 90-minute session of stimulating, gentle, and restorative touches “to create energetic balance, working to clear the energy source.” Through this soothing and deeply healing experience, the sincere and empathetic Jenna aims to restore vitality and harmony, helping you to express your life’s true path.

The Farmhouse

Venture out just two miles down the road from the inn to The Farmhouse, which resides on an endless apple orchard owned by former Gov. Harry Byrd, now owned by his grandson Harry Byrd III. If you’re lucky, the right smile might get you an apple. There you will encounter a cedar chest of quilts from the quilting center that used to be housed at the Gate House. The Sunset Room has a fireplace and enjoys magnificent sunsets. The second floor Sunrise Suite has two beds and looks out over the apple orchard and cow pastures. Pastoral yet with a very modern interior, (read granite countertops and ultra-modern appliances,) the timber inside was reclaimed from outbuildings on property. The Farmhouse is historical, yet contemporary, with iPad minis – and quilts – everywhere.

The Hawthorn House

Just a stone’s throw away, a gravel road winds through apple orchards to the stately Hawthorn House – an extensively restored yellow clapboard and stone estate. As the first building in Jefferson County, the Hawthorn House, circa 1714, is an authentic historical landmark. Five dormers jut out of the steel roof of this impressive Georgian Colonial. Step inside onto wooden floors with Oriental rugs and be transported back in time by the period exposed log walls and wrought-iron balustrade. The historical flair is palpable here at the Hawthorn House, with its log cabins and historical structures. The main floor South Suite has access to the side porch from a private door and enjoys morning views of the quiet countryside and undulating mountains beyond. The surrounding farms grow apples, peaches, corn, and alfalfa, and house about sixty dairy cows. Then you’ll notice something you almost never see anymore – silos, real silos. Yes, they still exist.
All suites have stone gas fireplaces (larger downstairs) and inspired writing desks, not to mention the delightfully ubiquitous mini iPads. Suites on the main level (downstairs) have sturdy stone walls and immense gas fireplaces. The upper level (East and West Suites) rooms (upstairs) have timbered walls. The North Suite also features inviting window seats and a grand Roman soaking tub.

Ricardo, once an investigative reporter for the Sacramento Bee and now resident innkeeper at the Hawthorn House, describes it as your “home away from home.” Like home with boutique hotel amenities from Gilchrist & Soames, that is. You can rent the whole place and even bring in your own chef, who will delight in the sunlight-flooded country kitchen window. It’s even pet-friendly. Modern amenities for the wired set include an electric dart board, pool, and ping-pong in this wood- and stone-walled cave of a Billiard Room downstairs. The bar in the wine cellar was hewn from a downed tree. The soon-to-be-opened tasting room will offer pairings with chocolate, truffles, and cheeses. How wonderfully decadent! So sip away, if you will.

The Hawthorn House delights in spectacular views of the West Virginia countryside. This landscape is strikingly beautiful all year long, even in leafless interludes, with the stark, dark branches contrasting against the pale winter sky. But just wait for that perfect “pink moment” where the landscape is bathed in a soft light. Behold the breathtaking countryside sunset for yourself. Unwind on the porch or in the gazebo with a nice glass of Hillbrook wine and a quilt on your lap, and watch the glow of the night emerge, perform its graceful watercolor dance across the evening sky, and finally disappear.

Hillbrook Inn is a storybook hideaway. If you close your eyes, you can easily imagine Snow White ambling along among the Old World trees of this enchanted forest, winding her way back to that cottage of curious cohorts. (Apples everywhere! Beware!) And I’m pretty sure Granny lives nearby. You may want to take her a basket of goodies. Check the tavern for treats – maybe homemade chocolate chip cookies, streudel, or bourbon blondies. Or perhaps some chocolate-covered strawberries or cherries. Just remember the old adage – don’t talk to strangers – but here I must say that’s not easy. The strangers here are just so friendly. Hillbrook might just cause you believe in fairy tales again – at the very least architecturally. So the spell has surely been cast. But please don’t pinch me. I really don’t want to wake up just yet. Oh, right – and they lived happily ever after. You, that is...

Already into the New Year and beating yourself up for not sticking to your resolutions? Well, you are not alone. I know you said this year would be different and you believed it would be... so what happened?

Generally when you make broad resolutions that are filled with absolutes like “I am not going to eat any junk food,” you are more likely to fail. Why? For two reasons: One because making sweeping changes all at once is very difficult and two, change comes more easily when it is broken down into small doable, specific pieces. Instead of thinking that all of your bad habits will be gone in one fell swoop, you might be more likely to succeed if you take baby steps. Identifying one or two new changes at a time helps integrate new ways of being into your already busy life. Breaking change down into achievable steps, leads to success.

Often times what seems overwhelming when looked at as a whole, like “I have to lose 25 pounds by Valentine’s Day,” is more easily accomplished when you start to differentiate the task. For instance, just saying you have to lose weight doesn’t really break it down into manageable parts. But when you identify four quick breakfasts that you can throw together before you run out of the house or that you can grab at work, you are heading down the path to victory. Same thing holds true with “I have to go to the gym.” Simply telling yourself that you have to go won’t cut the muster, but sitting down with the gym’s class schedule and your schedule and finding convenient times that work, and classes that interest you, will greatly increase the probability of exercising more. Take into consideration if you are a morning or evening person. Make what you do fit with who you are.

Identifying the goal and then breaking it down into small pieces makes it much easier to accomplish. If you don’t want to be eating junk food, you have to plan ahead. Is there food in the house that I can eat for meals? What about snacks? When is a good time to make a shopping list and go to the store? Many times fast food restaurants are the default. You are starving with no plan for dinner, so on the way home you pull up to the drive in window and order what is not going to help you reach your weight loss or health goals. Then you usually chow it down in the car before you even get home! What happened to sitting at a table and eating? If you take ten minutes in the morning, throw dried beans, canned tomatoes, green chilies, and lean protein into a crock pot, you could come home to a piping hot meal. Add some fresh, sliced avocado, grated low fat cheese, and spicy salsa and you will be singing Dixie! Not to mention saving money.

So instead of giving up, recommit and start fine tuning what you can do to keep those well intentioned resolutions alive.

Bryce Mountain Resort offers true beginner terrain and is the perfect place to learn how to ski or snowboard. In 2010, the resort received the OnTheSnow.com Visitor’s Choice Award for the most family-friendly ski resort in the Mid-Atlantic/Southeast region. Bryce Mountain accommodates all visitors with lower slopes that are fit for beginners, and the upper slopes which are challenging enough for more advanced skiers and snowboarders. One of the best features of the mountain is how the slopes funnel into one central area, so for those of you who want to kick back and relax, but need to keep an eye on the kids, you can do both! Lodging is offered through private rental agencies, and includes condominiums, townhomes, and chalets.

Timberline features away in the Allegheny Mountains, and located right near Canaan Valley Resort, lies Timberline Ski Resort, a fun and exciting winter wonderland that offers great skiing, and more importantly, great snow! Sitting over 4,000 feet above sea level, Timberline gets over 200 inches of snow each season! Timberline offers some of the longest runs in the area, some as long as two miles. Timberline partnered up with Canaan Valley Resort to offer some of the finest lodging in West Virginia. Comfort and service await all of the guests who stay in the many cottages, cabins, camp sites and lodges. Travelers come by for the skiing and other snow sports, but they stay for the peace that the beautiful natural setting has to offer.
Halfway between Bluefield and Beckley, West Virginia, and not too far from the DC area, lies the largest snow tubing park in West Virginia. We assure you that the kids will be begging to come back year after year, and you will happily agree! You will enjoy the slopes with the family, but if you need a break, the resort offers Frosties Kinder Care program for the little ones in the family. Winterplace also provides top of the line rental equipment, boarding and skiing lessons, four on-site restaurants, and a comfortable resort to crash at after a fun-filled day.

With an energy-efficient and world renowned snow making system, plus the 100 inches of annual snowfall each year, Wisp has one of the best winter playgrounds in the state! Enjoy everything from skiing and snowboarding to cross country skiing, ice skating, snowshoeing, and snowmobiling. However, you don’t have to be a snow-sport fanatic to enjoy yourself at this wintery getaway. This beautiful spot, located three hours from DC, is a great destination for leisure travelers. You can relax in the spa, enjoy the scenery, try out some ice fishing, or dine at the wonderful restaurants. Lodging includes the conveniently located Wisp Resort Hotel with guest rooms and two-room suites as well as several vacation rental homes.

Their goal at Whitetail Resort is to provide a total recreational experience so enjoyable that their guests choose to return again and again. With improvements coming each year, the resort now offers more trails, more lifts, two terrain parks and plenty of amenities for recreation and relaxing – 2 dining areas, snack shop, Starbucks café, and sport shop. Night skiing and snowboarding is offered every evening until 10 PM. From skiing and snowboarding to snow tubing you’ll have a blast with the whole family. Places to stay around Whitetail include everything from a cozy bed and breakfast to roony hotel suites, and all are located in close proximity to the slopes. Whitetail is located just 90 minutes from DC.

With sixteen trails and slopes placed along two sides of the mountain, Liberty Mountain has a very diverse layout that offers a wide variety of terrain for each guest. There are beginner slopes which are gentle and easy to learn on, many groomed and challenging intermediate slopes, as well as steep and thrilling expert slopes, they actually have the most expert terrain in the area. Liberty Mountain Resort also offers several levels of terrain parks ranging from beginner to expert for skiers and boarders. Enjoy a stay at the Liberty Mountain Hotel with 99 comfortable guest rooms or stay in one of the nearby inns or hotels. Located only 60 miles from the DC area, Liberty Mountain will be a great place to stay this winter.
ROUNDTOP MOUNTAIN RESORT

Roundtop Mountain offers an enjoyable experience for everyone. Beginners are offered a specially designed Discovery Area where they quickly can build up their confidence and expand their skills. Kids, as young as 3 years old, can learn in the Izzy Bear Terrain Garden which is reserved just for the little ones; it even comes with its own lift! There are a variety of cruiser runs for the intermediate skiers, as well as challenging slopes which are perfect for expert skiers. Roundtop offers magnificent snow conditions, and with a new snowmaking compressor and snow guns, fresh snow can cover the terrain faster than ever. There are many comfortable lodging options offered to guests to make their vacations fun and relaxing.

MCLEAN ORCHESTRA AWARDED GRANT from the Arts Council of Fairfax County

McLean, VA – The McLean Orchestra has been awarded a grant from the Arts Council of Fairfax County that will be used for concert operations and the orchestra educational project, the McLean Youth Orchestra. The 2014-15 season is the McLean Orchestra’s 44th season. The orchestra performs 5 orchestral programs in the Oakcrest School each season.

“I want to thank the Arts Council of Fairfax County for this generous grant. The money allows us to continue to provide high quality classical music for the Greater McLean Community, as well as provides support for the McLean Youth Orchestra,” said Executive Director Mark Francis.

“Across Fairfax County, arts and culture are helping to build stronger communities, improve the quality of life, and foster economic growth. The Arts Council’s grant programs provide vital funds for basic operations of local arts organizations and recognize the valuable programs and services they provide to Fairfax County residents,” said Linda S. Sullivan, President and CEO of the Arts Council of Fairfax.

Thanks to the government of Fairfax County, the Arts Council awards nearly $500,000 annually in county and private funds to artists and arts organizations of all disciplines. In FY2013 the Arts Council awarded 62 organizations and 3 artists, funded over 2,600 performances and activities that were attended by over 1.2 million people.

Over 400 dance enthusiasts and philanthropists turned out to support the first-ever DC’s Dancing Stars Gala at the Ritz Carlton in Tyson’s Corner last October. Event co-chairs and Fred Astaire Studio of Fairfax owners Maria Coakley David & Jim David and Executive Director Susannah Moss brought together notable Washingtonians to help raise over $150,000 in support of local charities.

Former Washington Redskins players and teammates Clinton Portis and Chris Cooley reunited off the field to host the debut gala. Dancing with the Stars dancer Jonathan Roberts, The Bachelorette’s Chris Bukowski and former Washington Redskin Gary Clark teamed up to judge the dance competition and crowned NBA wife Charrisse Jackson-Jorden and PBS’ Rina Shah the DC’s Dancing Star Champions. Both took home the coveted DC’s Dancing Stars trophies.

Other celebrity dancers included: House of Cards actor Lamont Easter, former NFL player John Booty, WUSA9’s Mike Hydeck and Andrea Roane, America’s Miss DC 2012 Sarah Hillware, America’s Miss DC 2013 Antoinette Cordova, VP of DARCARS Automotive Group Tammy Darvish and Ted Britt Automotive Group General Manager Evelyn Smallwood. Guests also enjoyed performances by the Fred Astaire Studio of Fairfax professionals, the event’s presenting sponsor.

Former NFL player and ESPN contributor Rich ‘Doc’ Walker and Brian Carpenter were on-hand to lead the live auction. The two also awarded Cindy Hardeman the winner of the Redskins Challenge for receiving the most votes for her dance performance at the event. Emily Lozano was recognized as the fundraising challenge winner for raising over $10,000 in honor of the DC’s Dancing Stars Gala.

Smokers are a dying breed...yeah, pun intended. Recent statistics show only 19% of Americans are still hooked on the habit. Holy R.J. Reynolds!

What happened? Smoking used to be one of life's great pleasures, ranking up there with food and sex—often surpassing both. We smoked unfiltered in the 50's, filtered in the 60's, and doobies in the 70's. After that we can't remember what happened.

Sure, we were mildly aware of the dangers of smoking—like smelly clothes and hacking up a lung, but nobody really cared. Hey, we couldn't help it! Everywhere we looked through the fog of ciggy smoke, we'd be pummeled with ads telling us that smoking makes you feel good, look cool, and act sexy. From the women's lib empowering Virginia Slims commercials to the fantasy of lassoing the ripped abs of the Marlboro man, we got hooked—physically and psychologically.

Forget about cigarettes shortening your life. The only life threatening event I ever witnessed was when my glammo girlfriend sprayed her Farrah Fawcett hairdo with 3 cans of Aquanet (it was 97% alcohol), attempted to light her Newport slim and her head spontaneously burst into flames. Luckily, she escaped with only singed bangs and eyebrows—well worth it to look so sophisticated. But nowadays, the image has changed. Anyone smoking in public risks the humiliation of having a third grader walk up to him and say, "Dude, that’s NOT cool." Sigh. Smokers are being outlawed from just about every public place on earth except maybe their own basements. I wouldn't be surprised if the remaining smokers were deported to Molokai. Oops, forget it—the lepers don't want them either.

So, what are the options?

1. Quit Gold Turkey
UPSIDE: In one year you’ll save the equivalent of a college tuition.
DOWNSIDE: Nasty nicotine withdrawal, weight gain, and paying for a lifetime of anger management classes.
CONCLUSION: The trade-off for being skinny and poor is being fat and rich.

2. Smoking Cessation Meds like Chantix
UPSIDE: Self-medication is very chic.
DOWNSIDE: Contraindications include loss of sleep, disturbing dreams, stroke, heart attack, weird behavior, depressing thoughts, and suicide.
CONCLUSION: Your odds of living are better if you don’t quit.

3. eGigs
UPSIDE: You’re inhaling harmless water vapor laced with addictive nicotine.
DOWNSIDE: You look like a geek smoking a pen.
CONCLUSION: Even gorgeous pitchwoman Jenny McCarthy and her gorgeous gams can’t sell these things.

Which way would I go? None of ’em...pass the Prozac.

Here we are at the beginning of 2015, and many of us have chosen to establish new goals for ourselves, especially in the area of health – lose weight, become more fit, eat healthier, become less stressed. Fortunately there is an answer that encompasses all those concerns in a single facility.

From the moment one enters Cypress Fitness at 6867 Elm Street in McLean, it is evident that this is not your average fitness center. Oh, one will recognize much of the equipment used, but similarities to a standard gym stop there. Replacing Elm Street Fitness about a year ago, the facility underwent a $750,000 renovation. They ungraded the technology, revamped the equipment, and installed state-of-the-art, high-density 4” thick flooring for ideal impact conditions during workouts.

Monitors strategically placed throughout the workout area report individual’s progress such as calories burned, current heart rate, effort being maintained and more. It is, in fact, a process of constant assessment and feedback of your body’s activity while exercising. Each individual has a belt with a computer chip analyzing the workout. Even when on vacation, the client’s efforts will be recorded, then uploaded to the computer upon returning to the fitness center.

Owner Chris Mattice describes the experience as a technology-based fitness solution. They have married technology and analytics with labs and fitness, completing biometrics assessment and developing individualized coaching programs to address each client’s specific needs.

As Chris says, “Why guess? Let’s assess.” They analyze the client’s blood, urine, and genetics to write a unique fitness program for each client. “We do as much in house as we can” but they also use outside labs to analyze data as required. Once the client has all the data, Cypress can show them how to use the information to maximize their training based on the client’s goals. Marketing Director Katherine Quinn explains, “Biometrics are retested regularly and fitness programs are adjusted. It is a concierge fitness experience.”

Coaching can be one-on-one, semi-private, or in a group. A typical client will do both group and individual sessions, maybe one or two of each per week. Each session lasts an hour. The group coaching is just like one-on-one. It is programmed and coached for each individual but the group sessions are based on camaraderie. Chris says, “We all thrive with encouragement and motivation to succeed. People want to do more work, but it’s difficult when they are exercising on their own.

“There are no sitting pieces of equipment but that is intentional. The body is designed to move and that is the way you should exercise. We suffer from sitting disease in our lives today. We sit at breakfast, on the drive to work, we sit at work, on the drive home and at dinner. Then we sit at the various screens that are in our lives. We can all benefit from less sitting and more body movement.”

Another significant area of evaluation is that of nutrition. Cypress will undertake a review of the client’s diet and, again through lab analysis, determine which foods are best for each individual. The average person consumes 26 foods in their diet, some may be good for that individual, some may be bad. The analysis will say which of 256+ foods are compatible with your body and which are not. For example strawberries may be good for you while blueberries may not. The report can even tell you the exact types of nuts that are good for your body.

As their slogan says, “every body has a story.” The body has a cellular response to each food. Negative responses can result in inflammation, which can result in sleeplessness or brain fog or other maladies. Cypress will investigate the causes of your condition based on the foods you eat. Then the client can follow their recommendations or take the results to their own doctor for follow-up.

Chris has worked for sixteen years amassing this knowledge while apprenticing with the likes of trainers Charles Poliquin, Lavalle, and Cosgrove. He has developed this total fitness approach to help people feel better and be as healthy as possible, with more energy and better sleep. “We look to be the one-stop shop where health needs are met both inside and outside the body to have a happy, healthy, and pain-free life. We are educators who provide real fitness for real people.

“As far as we know, Cypress Fitness is the only center that takes this kind of approach to your health, with a personalized treatment program for each client. As we continue, our goal is to be an ever-increasing part of the community, helping with programs like youth sports safety.”

To inquire about a technology-based fitness program, contact Cypress Fitness, at 703 442 0748, www.cypressfit.com.
From the first time the memory-impaired person takes off from home unescorted in the middle of the night, the caregiver never has another night’s rest. Will he run off again? Will he get hurt if he does?

As one’s memory loss becomes ever more acute, the challenges for the family multiply until there is no break in the 24/7 physical and emotional demands being placed on them. Hence a need for assisted living arrangements develops. At the Sylvestery the administration and staff understand all of these issues. Marketing Director Dave DeClark explains, “We consider all of our residents from multiple perspectives, including social, nutritional, and clinical needs – and pay particular attention to the family members also.

“A major concern is: who takes care of the family member/caregiver? We don’t want them to be the forgotten group.”

Indeed bringing their loved one to a new home can create a lot of guilt. At The Sylvestery the family is encouraged to be a significant part of the resident’s life.

The clinical team encourages regular visits and there is much freedom for the families to take the residents out frequently. As much as possible the center includes the family in caretaking discussions and activities. “We want the family member to say “I’m really glad they’re here.”” says DeClark. In fact the resident council meetings are really family council meetings as some residents can’t speak for themselves.

Another factor of note is that The Sylvestery is one part of the Vinson Hall Retirement Community which also comprises independent living, assisted living and nursing care. The management looks to maintain the community aspect as individuals may move from one facility to another. Spouses often live within the community but at another level of care. In fact one group of ladies
We designed the Renaissance Program at The Sylvestery specifically for those in the early phases of memory impairment.

In our maintenance-free environment, your loved ones enjoy life at their own pace through engaging activities promoting physical and spiritual well-being based on individual abilities and group interests.

Our award-winning layout provides the safety, comfort, and freedom which allows residents to move freely through continuous walkways and numerous courtyards to enjoy safe outdoor experiences.

With a highly-trained, personable staff and a calendar of events, you can be sure our residents get the most out of life. Residents of the Renaissance Program can enjoy home-cooked lunches and dinners in our Compass Rose Café.

The Sylvestery Memory Support is open to the community and does not require any military affiliation.
used to get together while living at Vinson Hall and now they play cards together at The Sylvestery.

The decision to establish The Sylvestery was made because there was a pressing need for a memory support facility in the community. Previously the Arleigh Burke Pavilion was used for memory-impaired residents. However the population is aging in place so Vinson Hall needs to design and plan for the future. The goal is to give the residents the best possible life experience while they can still enjoy it. The Sylvestery uses an all-inclusive pricing model without charging for add-ons. That allows families to pre-budget as the preparations are made.

The building itself was designed specifically to cater to the needs and safety of memory-impaired residents. As you enter the building, you see the beautiful Compass Rose Café where the residents can enjoy their lunch or dinner in a charming setting. From the lobby one continues along beautiful hallways, past delightful courtyards, and through numerous gathering spaces where residents can socialize and share activities.

Safety is of paramount importance. Certain residents may decide to take a walk at 3 am. They are not prevented from doing so, and due to the continuous hallway design they can move easily without encountering dead-ends which can be frustrating. The staff always watch the individual rooms and check on the residents very regularly. In fact The Sylvestery meets or exceeds all regulations and compliance requirements for assisted living care and even look after residents on a one-to-one basis as needed.

There are 36 private suites, each with full bath, which are constantly updated as new residents arrive. Each has the same floor plan with either a left or right orientation, but they can be customized with furniture for the individual desires of the resident and family. Safety issues are key which accounts for the size and positioning of the major furniture.

Cubbies can be designed to create interesting variations and the facility provides cable if desired. The bed is oriented to the toilet so that the individual can easily see it, reducing the level of incontinence, which helps assure their dignity. The individual bathrooms are “wet” rooms without shower stalls. Balance bars are always near and even the towel holders double as balance bars. The table lamps are attached to the bedside tables and can’t be knocked off. The science of designing for folks with dementia must take all manner of issues into account.

TV’s are not automatically offered as the goal is to draw the residents into more social settings. They are engaged with a network of people and the staff promotes the human interaction as much as possible.

As one could predict, there is a low turnover rate of employees. Many have been with The Sylvestery since it opened in 2002 which helps because they know the residents, they know the family members, they are part of life here at The Sylvestery. In return the families are happy because the staff is taking great care of their loved one. By knowing the residents, they can watch for red flags. If a resident’s eating habits change quickly, they can react to assist the individual who can’t always communicate.

Regular activities are cognitive-centered, including various speakers, trunk shows, music therapy, book and current event discussions. There are birthdays and visits from outside groups. Recently the Girl Scouts held an ice cream social for the residents. There is a sensory oasis – a room with colors everywhere, lights, and all manner of objects for tactile stimulation. There is even a memory therapy robotic seal, Paro, who is a resident favorite. Four courtyards include such diversions as grills and a potter’s shed for the gardeners. There is even a washer/dryer available for those who find a sense of purpose in laundry activities.

Our craft room is available for the messier activities. Fitness instructors keep many residents active and leisure time can include spa time when they can soak and get their nails done, and regular appointments at the in-house barber shop and beauty salon are often on one’s schedule. In short residents at the Sylvestery enjoy a busy and fulfilling life in a setting of great caring, dignity, and safety.

Natural Gas. Efficient by Nature.

Natural gas appliances save money on utility costs all year. Homes outfitted with natural gas appliances can save significant money on utility costs—almost $850 a year when compared to all electric homes.

And now with rebates available in Virginia there’s an opportunity to keep a little extra money in your pocket—$200 on 90% AFUE natural gas furnaces and $30 on programmable thermostats. Substantial rebates are available for businesses too. Rebates are only available for installations in properties served by Washington Gas in Virginia, performed by licensed contractors through April 30, 2015. For details visit WashingtonGasRebates.com/VIVA.

As one who likes to plan the family vacations around cheese—travelling to the Normandy region of France, Alkmaar’s cheese museum in Holland and the Great Wisconsin Cheese Trail—eventually I came to realize that man can not vacation by cheese alone and I was forced to visit the theme parks and cruise destinations that other families frequent.

That left a void in my life, but thankfully, a little research and savvy investigating showed me that I didn’t need to venture far outside of my Northern Virginia home to enjoy the merits of a delicious cheese dish.

The Farms

A great way to spend a weekend is by heading south and visiting some of the state’s best cheese farms. You can visit three of my favorites in one day or make a weekend out of it and stay in one of the charming bed and breakfasts in the mountains.

Begin your journey with a short trek to the two-year-old Georges Mill Farm Artisan Cheese in Lovettsville, to taste its selection of handcrafted farmstead goat cheese. Located less than an hour from DC, this Northern Virginia farm boasts a creamery hidden inside a historic bank barn, with the lower serving as housing for its goats.

The farm also offers tours, tastings and cheese-making classes on select Sundays, but call ahead to schedule so you don’t miss out.

“We have the animals and make the cheese here so we do everything on site,” says Molly Kroiz, owner and cheesemaker of the farm. “We really pride ourselves on being accessible to people and love having people come out and see where the food comes from and of course, taste our cheeses.”

The farm is known for a wide assortment of cheeses, but my favorite is the Catoctin, a pungent cheese with a creamy paste and an earthy, mushroomy flavor.

Others that you must try include the Dutchman’s Creek Chevrè, a soft, tangy cheese named for the creek running through the property; and its Cavalry Camp Ash, a semi-soft cheese, named for the 6th NY Cavalry which spent the winter of 1864 camped on the property.

“It’s really a different product when you can get it fresh,” Kroiz says. “We came into this business because I loved being outside and working with my hands. It’s really fun and our days are so variable—I could be birthing baby goats, making cheese and delivering to restaurants in the same day.”

Next, head to the Piedmont region of Virginia, just 90 minutes outside of DC, and stop in at the Everona Dairy in Rapidan, which provides daily tours at its creamery, allowing visitors to see the cheese making process and conclude with a scrumptious tasting.

Be sure to try its signature cheese, the Everona Piedmont, a sheep’s milk cheese with a nutty flavor and sweet aftertaste. Everona also recently began selling its first blue cheese—a real treat—with a soft, spreadable, almost liquid center inside.

Other popular offerings include its Beer Washed, Chocolate Torta, Cheddar and Earthquake cheeses.

The Everona Dairy is owned by second-generation family members Brian and Carolyn Wentz, a master cheesemaker, carrying on the tradition of the 15-year-old farm.

End your cheese excursion in the southern mountains of the state and stop at the Meadow Creek Dairy in Galax, where the creamery is patterned on traditional European techniques.

“One of the best things about being a farmstead cheesemaker is you have your own milk. As we are a seasonal grazing dairy this creates a very unique milk which serves as the basis for our cheeses,” says cheesemaker Helen Feete. “We live in the Appalachian Mountains so our specific location, soils, grass, climate and altitude all combine to contribute to our cheese.”

A personal favorite is the Appalachian, a lightly cooked, pressed-curd cheese, aged for at least 60 days, that brings out a taste of a bright, lactic cheese with buttery overtones and a mushroomy earthiness.

The farm also offers the Grayson, a cheese inspired by a trip the family took to Ireland, which has a rich, beefy paste, and tastes slightly sweet, with grassy and nutty notes and a solid earthy undertone; and the Mountaineer, a washed rind cheese with a delicate, supple texture that just melts on the tongue.

Stop Here

In addition to the farms, there are a couple of places that every cheese lover is going to need to visit to experience a cheese-tastic life.

Virginia is home to one of the most unique cheesemaking ventures in the world, as a group of nuns at the Our Lady of the Angels Monastery in Crozet, Va., churn out a delectable gouda using a native Dutch recipe and cheese culture shipped fresh from Wisconsin.

All the work—from making the cheese to packaging to providing mail-order marketing—is done by the nuns in a red-and-white barn that sits down the hill from their monastery, complete with a stainless steel vat holding 725 gallons of curds and whey.

“The cheese-making is our means of self-support. It covers our living expenses, and allows us to give alms to those in need,” says Sister Barbara Smickel. “And it is a very bonding experience for us—nothing quite like working together on a common project, making something good and wholesome and sharing this with the rest of the human family. Also, our life of prayer is quite intense, and the good manual labor done together is a wonderful complement to this.”

The sisters produce only what they need to support themselves so that they can remain focused on their life of worship and charge just $25 for a two-pound wheel. It’s definitely worth stopping by and grabbing a wheel or two to take home and enjoy. It’s just heavenly.

Then there’s the Cheese Shop in Williamsburg, a restaurant in the historic Merchant Square, which offers cheeses from all over the U.S. for tastings, in sandwiches and to go with its more than 4,000 wines and micro beers. It also features a takeout window for people to enjoy a nice cheese treat as they explore the streets of Colonial Williamsburg.

Owned by second-generation restaurateurs Cathy Power Pattisall, Thomas Power, Jr., and Mary Ellen Power Rogers, the Cheese Shop first began in 1971 in Newport News and moved to its current location in 2001 and is one of the busiest and most popular places in town.

The Restaurants

Without question, my favorite dining option in Northern Virginia is Cheesetique, which has locations in both Alexandria and Arlington. Friends and family who visit me are almost always taken here on their first night and once looking at the menu, they understand my passion for the place.

The gourmet boutique features over 300 cheeses from around the world, and you can order as many as you desire on a cheese plate. But my favorite thing about the place—aside from the nice cushy red couch that you can claim with a party of four—is its signature Fromage Fort, an ever-changing fondue blend that is made from whatever cheeses happen to be available on a given day. It never disappoints.

Then of course, the restaurant has a menu full of “adult grilled cheeses,” which are made with cheeses like Gruyere and Pimiento, plus specialty meats and served on mouthwatering breads. Add a nice bottle of Bordeaux and a side of olives, and you have a meal fit for a king.

Another interesting place to check out is the Screwtop Wine Bar and Cheese Shop at 1025 N. Fillmore St. in Arlington. The store sells a unique selection—such as wasabi cheddar—and the restaurant has nice cheese/flight pairings that change monthly. Its menu features cheesy delights such as grilled cheese sliders and fiesta nachos.

If you’re in the Cleveland Park area, be sure to check out Ripple (3417 Connecticut Ave. NW), an award winning upscale casual restaurant that offers fresh, local cheeses from Maryland and Pennsylvania, as well as a selection of international cheeses.

The Shops

When I’m up for a cheese picnic or a dinner at home with friends and family, I usually opt to head to Arrowine & Cheese in Arlington, Va., or its sister site Arrowine & Spirits on K St., in DC to choose my selections.

Not only does it offer some of the best cheeses from around the world—my favorite being Ewephoria—but it has a selection of fine wines that puts most wine stores to shame. With an olive bar, charcuterie station and fresh bread available every day, you can spend an hour in the store tasting cheese favorites of the staff and leave stuffed before you even get home to your meal.

The staff knows its stuff and will join you in sampling any cheese you desire and there’s no better place to talk about the subject of cheese in the area.

Those in DC should check out the Cowgirl Creamery at 919 F St. NW, as it specializes in selling fresh, delicious organic cheeses made by head cheesemaker Maureen Cunnie. The store provides numerous cheese samples, and you can also pick up pasta, spreads, crackers, nuts and other cheese complementary items.

Finally, Righteous Cheese at 1309 5th St. NE in DC, located inside the Union Market in NoMa, attracts a younger college crowd with its cheese/beer pairings. The trendy eatery changes cheeses monthly, and the shop offers wine and cheese classes taught by noted Fromagier Carolyn Stromberg.

If you’re “cheese crazy” like me, you don’t need to worry about not getting your fix if you come to the DC area. With scrumptious restaurants, incredible shops and farms you can make daytrips to, there’s no reason why every week can’t be cheesetastic.

Creating Your Own Wine Tasting Notes

BY LINDA BARRETT

When it comes to describing wine, we all know enough to be dangerous. Yet, even the most knowledgeable among us are flummoxed by some of the terminology and methods used to describe wine. Here, we’ll help you understand how wines are described and show you how you can create your own tasting notes or tasting journal.

Wine terminology

Visit any winery and you will be handed the wine list, with its corresponding descriptions. Here are a few common terms that may help you understand how a wine receives its description.

Acidity
Wines with high acidity are described as “tart” as opposed to “round.” Reds generally have a lighter color, and whites can have characteristics similar to citrus juice.

Austere
Considered an “unfriendly” wine, austere generally means the wine has very high acidity and very little fruit flavors.

Big
A big wine brings a large flavor involving all sections of your mouth and tongue. It can also mean that it has big tannins.

Bright
Bright wines make your mouth water due to their higher acidity.

Buttery
Buttery wine is aged in oak and is rich and flat, or less acidic, with a creamy texture that resonates on the middle of the tongue like oil or butter, with a smooth finish.

Cigar
These wines hint at sweetness and cedar, and offer a smoky taste. This is a wine to sit and sip.

Complex
In a complex wine, the flavor changes from the time you sip it to the time you swallow.

Crisp
Crisp wine is simple and generally is a white. It’s great for a hot summer day.

Earthy
This term describes a sometimes-unpleasant green finish on a wine.

Elegant
An elegant vintage has higher acidity and more green characteristics, and is better once it has aged a bit. It is often described as elegant when it is not bold, fruity or big.

Opulent
Opulent describes a wine that is smooth, bold and rich.

Structured
A structured wine can be difficult to drink due to its high tannin levels. Age this wine and it should mellow out.

Toasty
These wines refer to those aged in Medium Plus Toasted Oak barrels, offering a burnt caramel finish.

Unoaked
An unoaked white wine is zesty, with lemony flavors, while a red is likely to be tart. Unoaked refers to the lack of vanilla, butter, cream or baking spices flavors.

Velvety
Like chocolate, velvety wines are smooth, silky and lush.

---

TASTING NOTES:
Blenheim Vineyards Cabernet Franc

“This Virginia red wine is aged 9 months in American and Hungarian oak barrels. Notes of smoke, dried herbs, eucalyptus, cedar and cracked pepper make this an intriguing example of Virginia Cabernet Franc. This wine is not masked by oak, creating a juicy expression of this varietal.”

Writing your own tasting notes

With any wine tasting, it’s fun to taste and make comments. Take it to the next level by creating your own tasting journal with these helpful steps.

1. Appearance

Describe the color you see in the wine, and note its shade intensity using descriptive words for the red, purple or yellow tones, such as deep, medium, golden, greenish, opaque or pale.

2. Aromas

Aromas are sometimes referred to as the “nose” or “bouquet.” Take a first sniff and jot down the aromas that come to mind first. First impressions can include “fruity” or “floral.” Then swirl your glass and take a second sniff to look for more descriptors such as “fruit,” “buttery” or “vanilla,” or even “barnyard,” “musty” or “earthy.” List the primary aroma first.

3. Flavors

Take a healthy taste and swirl the wine around in your mouth several seconds before swallowing. Describe the wine’s taste as it hits your tongue and note whether you perceive it as sweet, bitter, sour or salty, and note similarities to foods.

Primary: Primary tastes come from the type of grape and its terroir, and might be described as tobacco, black pepper or plum, for example. When describing a wine for your own tasting notes, list the primary taste first, with others to follow.

Secondary: Developed in the winemaking process, secondary flavors can include slightly more subtle notes such as fresh butter, baked bread, fruity, chocolate, nutty or caramel.

Tertiary: Tertiary flavors develop through aging and often the oak, and include more identifiable flavors such as vanilla, clove, coconut, smoke, or almond.

4. Acidity, Tannins and Body

Acidity: Acidity refers to the tartness or how puckering a wine is. With a high acidity, the wine may offer characteristics similar to a lemon or lime. With low acidity, it may be similar to watermelon.

Tannins: Texture is the key. Note whether the wine has a “grip,” or a feeling that it sticks to your teeth.

Body: Notice how the wine feels in your mouth—its silky, rough, heavy or thick feel. The fuller it feels, the more body it has.

5. Finishes

The finish occurs the moment after the wine’s flavor dissipates, and leaves a specific aftertaste such as earthy, woody or sweet. While you can make a pleasant wine from inferior grapes, you cannot fake a long finish. Only the best grapes and the best winemaking processes result in a beautiful finish. (Note: On a wine grading scale, the finish is what often gives wine its highest ratings.)

Sweet Finish: The most popular finish, the sweet finish offers a note of sweetness, even if the wine itself is dry. In reds, the note could be reminiscent of sweet blackberry or sweet tobacco.

Tart but Tingly Finish: With a more bitter or tart finish, with some possible green notes, a quality wine’s acid will tingle and persist, giving it a long finish.

Fresh Finish: This finish indicates a number of secondary flavors on the finish, and may refer to freshly-made wine.

Keeping a wine tasting journal will help you record wines you loved, and perhaps some you didn’t. In either case, the most enjoyment comes when you can recognize the complexities and flavors each individual wine can offer.

TASTING NOTES:

Chrysalis Vineyards Viognier

“The wine has a heady perfume; a mélange consisting of cantaloupe, peaches, nectarines, orange blossoms and honeysuckle. On the palate, the wine is bold with sweet citrus and apple notes follow by hints of pineapple and Limoncello, with an underlying minerality. Fermentation in neutral oak barrels round out the wine and add a creamy texture.”

Total Wine & More provides two wine tasting records—one each for reds and whites—you can download and use for your own tastings.

Throughout the Northern Virginia area are several extraordinary private schools dedicated to superior learning across all grades. Whether a family is seeking rigorous instruction, more individual attention or specialized programs, there are private schools that offer opportunities that may not be readily available through public schools. While the following is not an exhaustive list of schools in the area, they represent schools that have earned a reputation for quality instruction and nourishing development of inquisitive young minds.

Bright Horizons creates developmentally appropriate learning opportunities building upon individual strengths and talents that empower children to be confident, successful, lifelong learners.

Early childhood is a time of remarkable growth, when children are experiencing rapid development, learning new skills, and progressing steadily towards physical, intellectual, and social-emotional milestones. Children at Bright Horizons are assured of getting the care that they need, the creative learning experiences they enjoy, and the intellectually challenging opportunities they deserve.

Regional Manager Vallerie Tribble says “Bright Horizons has an extreme commitment to the growth and development of our children who are the center of our efforts. We focus on the whole picture, providing the best learning [environments and highly-qualified teachers and administrators in an effort] to create the best partnerships with our families. It is this connection among all groups that makes Bright Horizons stand out as a leader in early childhood development.”

Brooksfield was developed to offer a Montessori curriculum enhanced by the power of discovery through the arts and the great outdoors. The Brooksfield philosophy is rich in exciting adventures and opportunities to develop abilities such as self-confidence, independent thinking, risk-taking, and curiosity.

Brooksfield encourages children to be confident in who they are and who they are becoming. Everyday provides a range of opportunities for children to grow into their potential and to express themselves in a natural, spontaneous fashion.

Congressional Schools of Virginia offers a welcoming environment for families interested in providing the best possible education for their children.

Through an innovative and accelerated curriculum, the Congressional Schools prepare children to embrace the opportunities and responsibilities they will face as global citizens. The core curriculum is enriched with foreign languages, fine arts and athletics.

Congressional’s unique approach to education includes integrating study across disciplines as well as across grade levels, building relationships and a reassuring sense of continuity in their education.

A Flint Hill education focuses on the learner. Within a context of strong relationships, we create developmental experiences that embrace the best practices of traditional and contemporary education.

Different learning styles are recognized and personalized attention given; Learning how to learn, through mastery of critical thinking, problem solving and writing skills, is given as much attention as mastery of subject matter.

The Flint Hill School experience is not merely a stepping stone to college, but one that has lifelong meaning and deep satisfaction. Headmaster John Thomas explains, “Flint Hill’s dynamic learning environment prepares students for success in a rapidly-changing world. Our teachers are committed to inspiring, encouraging and supporting every student to think deeply, engage in substantive interactions, and participate in meaningful conversation. Our students are nurtured toward achieving their personal best while remaining mindful of others and building lasting relationships with their instructors and peers.”

Green Hedges School provides an experience that emphasizes core academic subjects, foreign languages, the arts and athletics, while supporting the overall growth of the students.

A balance between academics and the arts and a whole child approach permeates the school culture. Headmaster Bob Gregg adds, “Children enter schools with diverse sets of skills, perceptions and experiences. Yet, an independent school, by virtue of its “independence” from external governing forces, has the unique ability to celebrate these differences within the context of the school’s clearly defined core values. At Green Hedges, these values include Achieve Distinction, Commit to Character, Explore Opportunities and Become Yourself. The collective efforts at GHS embrace these themes and facilitate the creation and preservation of an environment where preschool, elementary and middle school children comfortably grow intellectually, emotionally, physically and spiritually.”

The Langley School creates a child-centered environment that is academically challenging and uniquely engaging. The curriculum is integrated across disciplines, developmentally appropriate, and multicultural.

The students blossom in a safe, structured, and academically rigorous community that enables intellectual risk-taking while promoting positive social and personal development. The Langley School celebrates the middle school years to ensure they are not simply a sandwiched transition between elementary and high school.

For every child the innovative and differentiated teaching is tailored to the different learning styles of the students. Students learn so much more than how to read, solve a math problem, speak Spanish, or use a microscope. Langley prepares students for a life of intellectual engagement and responsible citizenship.

Dr. Elinor Scully, Head of the School remarks, “What distinguishes Langley is our commitment to pre-school through eighth grade children. These are foundational years that can position a child to thrive at work and in the community. We underscore the intellectual, social and emotional development and have a curriculum that is designed to ensure each child’s success.

Tutoring Club of McLean provides tutoring in reading, writing, all levels of math and sciences, history, English, foreign languages, study skills, SAT/ACT prep and more. The friendly tutors and positive atmosphere are the perfect choice for helping students strive academically and gain self-confidence.

Parents and students have quickly grown to appreciate Tutoring Club of McLean’s warm, fun and nurturing environment, and frequently comment on the flexibility, customer-focus and results. Through daily actions and involvement in the community, the Tutoring Club also strives to educate children on how they can make a difference in the world in which they live.

General objectives of the Montessori program are to: nurture self-confidence, independence, concentration, co-ordination, a sense of order, and an awareness of self, community and the world, to encourage and direct the natural desire to learn, choose and solve; and to provide a carefully prepared environment and personnel to support learning as it moves from the concrete base to greater abstraction.

The Primary (preschool/kindergarten) environment is divided into four main categories: practical life, sensorial exploration, language, and mathematics. The academic program also includes art, music, geography, science, history, foreign language, and physical education.

The rich Elementary curriculum includes mathematics, language, reading, grammar, writing, spelling, geography, history, technology, foreign language, and science.

Co-Head of School Meredith Wood offers, “Our mission is to nurture the whole child and to inspire an enduring love of learning that prepares children to live joyful lives as responsible, compassionate citizens, therefore contributing to a peaceful and benevolent society.”

Combining "serious fun" with exceptional academics, Nysmith School motivates students to become their best selves academically and socially. Nysmith teachers have created an active, hands-on program where students role-play in social studies, dissect in science labs, discuss in language arts, and create in computer class. Methods are lively, engaging, and take advantage of students’ innate joy in discovery and learning. Classes are small so teachers and students can truly collaborate.

Ken Nysmith comments, “The reason people drive their children from Bethesda or Arlington to our school in Herndon is that we are so committed to diversifying the academics for the children to flourish. They typically perform at four levels. above grade level. Nysmith School really meets the needs of our children in a loving and nurturing environment.”

Oakcrest educates the whole person. Inspired by the teachings of the Catholic Church and the spirituality of Opus Dei, they weave together a rich liberal arts curriculum, character development, one-on-one advising and service to create a vibrant environment that graduates confident young women who will make a difference in all they choose to do.

Students at all-girls schools report having higher aspirations and greater motivation, being challenged to achieve more, engaging more actively in the learning process, feeling more comfortable being themselves and expressing their ideas, showing greater gains on core academic and life skills, being and feeling more supported in their endeavors.

The School provides a Catholic education instilled with the spirituality of St. Francis de Sales. It is intended to “make your child’s faith a living, conscious, and active one through the light of instruction.” The integration of religious truth and values with life is the focal point of the curriculum. OLGC School strives for academic excellence, encourages appreciation of the fine arts, fosters self-respect and respect for all life, and attempts to develop responsibility for the total community.

The Potomac School prepares students to achieve academically and to live healthy, principled, and successful lives. Potomac faculty truly get to know each child - their interests and passions and what lights their intellectual fire, challenging students with a rigorous program of inquiry and study. Potomac graduates develop a framework for understanding the world and the skills and traits to succeed in it.

Head of School John Kowalik notes, “A Potomac School education is distinctive in many ways. I think immediately of the excellence of our teaching and the beauty of our wooded, 90-acre campus. One of our great strengths is the fact that Potomac is a K-12 school with all grade levels in one location; this creates exciting opportunities for collaboration and contributes to the strong sense of community for which our school is known.

“In addition to academic achievement, Potomac emphasizes character development and excellence in all dimensions of a student’s life. This is the promise of our mission—to prepare students to achieve academically, and to lead healthy, principled, and successful lives.”

HIDDEN TREASURE:
SEA PEARL
Restaurant & Lounge
in the Mosaic District

When you step into Sea Pearl, you can’t help but be impressed. The stunning flower arrangement in the expansive entry, the cozy couches in the lounge, the hushed dining area—it feels more like a posh downtown restaurant than a suburban eatery. Sea Pearl is where a couple might celebrate a romantic anniversary or treat themselves to date night. The elements are all here for an evening to remember.

I asked Chef Sly Liao how he and his partner/wife Ly Lai created such a stand-out dining experience, and he explained simply, “We like to do what we like to do.” The independent-minded husband and wife team took no investors when they designed Sea Pearl, a one-of-a-kind restaurant located in Merrifield at the entrance to the bustling Mosaic District. They were pioneers; the first to bring fine dining to what had been an industrial neighborhood with a few fast food places. Six years ago, when Sea Pearl opened its doors, the restaurant blazed a new trail with an eclectic menu, soft, alluring interiors, and attentive service.

Questioned about why they chose Merrifield, Sly says, “It’s where we live. This is our neighborhood. We know our neighbors have disposable income, and there was nothing like this here before. So I thought it would be great for us,” he pauses, “Maybe it’s time for the suburbs.” Agreed.

Sea Pearl has many loyal customers who know and regularly patronize the restaurant, but in some ways, it’s still a hidden gem. “We are still waiting to be discovered,” notes Liao. “We have full confidence in what we do—it’s all from our passion. We’re making what we like to eat. People have recognized that, and they love us for it. We get most new customers from word of mouth.”

The design is sleek—black, grey and orange furnishings—with cascades of pearly white shells hung in strategic spots. The lounge can be lively, but the dining area remains serene, an ideal place for meaningful conversation. Additionally, the private dining room seats up to 100 people.

CONTEMPORARY ETHNIC

Exotic sushi rolls; Moroccan root vegetable stew; hefty braised lamb shank—Sea Pearl’s menu defies categorizing.
The wide range of ethnic influences is a result of the partners’ impressive pedigrees. Sly was born in India to Chinese parents, and his world involved eating different cuisines. Growing up, he sampled a wide range of spices, and that exposure continued when he cooked in New York City for ten years before heading to Washington DC to become the regional chef for Ark Restaurant Group. Before opening Sea Pearl, Sly was headquartered at Sequoia in Washington Harbour.

Sea Pearl’s manager, Ly, is the eldest of Northern Virginia’s famous Four Sisters, a Vietnamese restaurant dynasty that has provided her with serious food cred. Sly and Ly (pronounced Lee) endeavor together, side-by-side with their enthusiastic staff members. “We feel like a family,” says Sly. “It’s great for them. They see us working here every day. They are involved; we explain things. It’s more personal, hands-on. You can’t substitute that.”

The Menu

What to order? That’s a conundrum when you peer at this menu for the first time. Ideally, you would go a few times to explore all they have to offer. But a good start is the signature sushi. These are not your grocery store sushi rolls. Besides the clever combinations of the freshest seafood, each plate looks as good as it tastes. I recommend their popular Firecracker, Paradise or Hell rolls.

“We are still waiting to be discovered,” notes Liao. “We have full confidence in what we do—it’s all from our passion. We’re making what we like to eat. People have recognized that, and they love us for it…”

The First Course dishes are just as imaginative—the Spicy Tuna Tartar features velvet slivers of tuna, accompanied by pickled vegetables and Yuzu Kosho emulsions, a citrusy, spicy aromatic. For a main course, if you’re up for more seafood, order the Cobia. Considered sustainable, this fish has as many nutrients as salmon, and Sly grills it perfectly. He places the cobia atop squash, sugar snap peas, and freshens it with lobster curry emulsion. Which brings me to the sauces. They are part of what makes Sea Pearl exceptional. Sly deepens the features of each dish with his complex drizzles. They mix their spices in house.

For a dish guaranteed to warm a cold winter night, consider the Macaroni and Shrimp—it is rich and satisfying. They also serve classic beef short ribs and Amish chicken. You might add a side of Kai Lan, succulent Chinese broccoli in garlic oil.

Sea Pearl serves lunch, and their weekday happy hour features drink specials and a selection of appetizers, including Cornmeal Crusted Calamari, Mosaic Crispy Rice Cakes and American Artisan Cheeses. Weekend Brunch consists of Asian-inspired dishes, salads and American breakfast fare too. Adventurous diners should check out the blackboard. It lists daily specials like live uni, spiky black sea urchins, or live scallops in their shells, all imported from Japan. “We have some guests who really appreciate these,” says Sly.

With daring cooking like this, and the growing enthusiasm for the Mosaic District, Sea Pearl will not remain a hidden treasure much longer. Maybe it is time for the suburbs. ♦

What makes a restaurant kid-friendly? Families say it’s having a kids’ menu with healthy options. Others say it’s when restaurants distribute crayons and games. Some moms and dads want inexpensive food, clean booster seats, and a friendly, patient wait staff. But parents agree—the best places have all those features. So here is a short list of some of the area’s most accommodating restaurants for families with younger children:

Luciano Italian Restaurant and Pizzeria
in Tysons Corner Center 1961 Chain Bridge Road McLean, 703-893-8488

Besides serving authentic New York style pizza by the slice, Luciano’s is the perfect place to take your kids when they are wiped out from shopping, and you both need a time to decompress. The gracious wait staff will bring your child a balloon and offer crayons and coloring paper—it’s a pretty cozy place in a sea of chaos. Stop in for ice cream or a kid-sized plain pizza “with no weird things on it.”

Coyote Grill and Cantina
10266 Main Street
Fairfax, 703-591-0006

With easy parking in the heart of Fairfax, this is a favorite stop for families who have kids with allergies or are just plain picky. This Tex-Mex food isn’t overly spicy, and the kitchen will make any item on the regular menu in a smaller size for kids. There are gluten free, vegan and dairy free options on the menu. Kids get coloring paper and crayons when they enter, and the friendly staff makes you feel like finding you a booster seat is their pleasure.

McLean Family Restaurant
1321 Chain Bridge Road
McLean 703-356-9883

For many families, weekend breakfasts are a celebration, especially when the celebration is at this family-owned restaurant. From cozy booths come peals of laughter as kids slurp up spaghetti and feast on French fries. It’s not unusual to see multigenerational meetings over pancakes at this Northern Virginia institution established back in 1969.

The Virginian Restaurant
The Vienna Shopping Center 169 Glyndon Street, SE
Vienna 703-938-2333

Enjoy a little piece of Americana in this old-fashioned neighborhood diner known for hearty breakfasts and Southern comfort food. It’s a popular stop for families with young children who love the pancakes and biscuits with their famous sweet gravy served any time of the day. Older kids will enjoy the vintage high swivel chairs and the campy signs.

Silver Diner
(www.silverdiner.com in multiple locations—Tysons, Mosaic, Reston, Fair Oaks)

Silver Diner isn’t your typical diner. The founder is a firm believer in using locally sourced products and offering a wide variety of healthy dishes—like pesto veggie pasta or black bean quesadilla. However, Silver Diner doesn’t scrimp on traditional breakfast items or their burgers and fries. Kids are given crayons and a placemat to color upon entering. Some kids’ meals are served in a cardboard car they can bring home. Tuesday nights are “kids nights” when the restaurant may distribute balloons, host a musician, or provide face painting. The mini jukebox at the table is a nice distraction for older kids. Younger children are treated with patience, and the staff rarely frowns on messiness or noise.
MIKE’S DELI AT LAZY SUNDAE
112 North West Street
Falls Church 703-532-5299
With a premier location on the W&OD Trail, this diner-style deli serves breakfast all day, burgers, shakes, and as the name says, primo ice cream sundaes. Popular with hikers, cyclists, and families, Mike’s Deli has a loyal following and aims to please with friendly, upbeat service and homemade ice cream with flavors that change daily.

UNCLE JULIO’S FAIRFAX CORNER
4251 Fairfax Corner Avenue
Fairfax 703-266-7760
Where can you take your little lovelies and not worry when they start to whimper or spill? Uncle Julio’s is that perfect place. The concrete floors are up to any disaster, and it’s often so noisy, no one will notice your screaming child. This Tex Mex cuisine is kid friendly—chips, quesadillas, tacos, grilled chicken—they love it all. Upon entry, kids are given crayons and games, and while waiting for your food to be served, ask for a ball of dough or watch the dough transformed into hot tortillas by the automatic tortilla machine. It’s best to go early, or during off hours, because the place gets crowded.

SOCIAL BURGER
350 Maple Avenue
Vienna 703-364-5420
The new Social Burger, a family owned and operated restaurant, opened this year to rave reviews from families who enjoy the generous portions, high quality burgers and efficient, friendly service. Parents say this neighborhood restaurant is better than many top rated competitors. Using only all natural, hormone free beef, buns baked daily and a number of innovative toppings—cranberry sauce, fried egg, bacon jam, homemade pickles, red curry mayo—appeals to Mom and Dad. When parents are happy, kids are usually happy too.

GLORY DAYS GRILL
3059 Nutley Street
Fairfax 703-204-0900
Glory Days is a sports bar, and the owners sponsor local kids’ sports teams. As a result, there are often oodles of kids celebrating here after their games. In good weather, families enjoy sitting outside on the outdoor patio, savoring their signature chicken wings. Multiple television screens keep little ones entertained, and the kids’ menu has special dishes like BBQ ribs, fried shrimp and pizza bagels. Each booth has its own entertainment center with volume control that allows customers to select a televised sports game or music.

ORIGINAL PANCAKE HOUSE
7395 Lee Highway
Falls Church 703-698-6292
Kids, pancakes. Pancakes, kids. Yes these two things go together nicely. So, if your kid loves pancakes, they will love the food here. It’s a cheery place, with enormous portions that can be easily shared. The OPH is known for its popular Dutch Baby, a puffy donut with lemon and powdered sugar, and for their fluffy crepes. They also serve gluten free dishes.

OPEN ROAD BAR & ICEHOUSE
8100 Lee Highway
Falls Church 571-395-4400
Merrifield has a popular new bar that’s surprisingly kid friendly. Ideally, families should go early in the evening before the live music starts. Servers here have been known to comp a kid’s meal when the little customer is “well behaved.” But even if your little critter has a meltdown, it won’t be noticed much since the restaurant is usually noisy. The Harley motorcycle on display fascinate kids who love vehicles (what kid doesn’t?). Another big draw is the free popcorn while you wait for your meal.

PIZZERIA ORSO
400 S. Maple Avenue
Falls Church 703-226-3460
Kids almost universally adore pizza, so it’s no surprise that families enjoy eating at this cheerful brick oven pizzeria. The bargain lunch deal is only $8 for a two-topping pizza and fountain drink, and on Tuesdays kids age 10 and under are eligible for one free item from the children’s menu. Because of the generous portions, you can save on your bill by sharing.

BONUS: MOST KID FRIENDLY CONCERT VENUE
JAMMIN JAVA
227 Maple Avenue East
Vienna 703-255-1566
Family-owned Jammin Java is a coffee shop, concert venue and fun place to hang out. They have one of the most active children’s music programs in the region. Kids love the “Tot Rock” shows with entertainers like Groovy Nate and The Great Zucchini. Check out their website for concerts hosted weekday and weekend mornings, but go early to get a seat. Stay after the show for a hot dog, fresh baked pastry or kids’ lunch special. They also serve parent-friendly food like salads, appetizers and flavorful chili dishes like Spicy Pork n’ Tomatillo.

Stop in Shamshiry, day or night, and you are likely to see groups sharing a meal and relishing the familiar taste of their homeland. This family-owned restaurant serves as a communal gathering place for Iranian expats who dine alongside other international patrons enchanted by this evocative cuisine. Although most Americans will never have the opportunity to visit Iran, diners can still experience an authentic Persian meal thanks to Shamshiry, a fixture in the Tysons Corner restaurant scene since 1993.

Tucked behind the entrance of an unassuming office building on Route 7, Shamshiry has become a popular outpost for people working around the area. The restaurant does a brisk to-go business at lunch, but it’s never too early or too late to see large families gathered there. Shamshiry acts as a kitchen or dining room table to groups of Middle Easterners. They come for the heaping plates of fluffy basmati rice—some flavored with dill or butter—and the smoky charcoaled kabobs.

Epicurious.com calls Persian cooking a “Mother Cuisine.” It provided a foundation of flavors and cooking techniques that influenced developing cultures along the Silk Road. Beginning with Cyrus the Great in 6th Century B.C., Persian perfumed stews, roasted meat and fruit-infused rice spread to the Far East and North Africa. During the Middle Ages, Arabs conquered Persia and began incorporating their preference for mixing sweet and sour flavors into traditional dishes. Although Persian cuisine has evolved over time, basmati rice continues to hold a place of honor on virtually every plate.*

BEGINNERS: WHAT TO ORDER

After taking a seat in the saffron-colored dining room, open the bag of warm flatbread on the table. I recommend ordering the creamy Mast-o Khiar—a bowl of tart yogurt with sliced cucumbers, chopped dill and other herbs—it’s very fresh and mellow. The Persian Salad Bowl is another fine start to a meal here. The salad is prepared with cucumbers, tomatoes, sliced black olives, kidney beans and goat cheese mixed with a dressing of olive oil and lemon juice.
Vegetarians and vegans will enjoy Shamshiry’s four rice dishes with additions like sour cherries, sugared orange peel, pistachios and almonds. The Baghali Polo, prepared with dill and fava beans, is a more savory option.

Smoldering kabobs are Shamshiry’s top sellers, and probably the feature that attracts the steady flow of customers in week after week. Generous portions of Halal meat are marinated in herbs and fresh garlic juice for more than 15 hours. Slid onto a metal spear, the meats are grilled on a blistering-hot charcoal fire tended by a patient pit master. You can watch him in action through the window into the kitchen. A.R. Atash-Sobh, son of owner Bijan Atash-Sobh, says Shamshiry only serves first quality meats—like the Chelo Kabob Barg made from filet mignon. “We lose money on it,” he explained to Kojo Nnamdi on WAMU. “But barbeque is a family tradition.”

One showcase kabob is the Chelo Kabob Kubideh, ground beef patties made with a potent collection of herbs, and served with a mound of saffron-infused rice (I’m getting hungry just thinking about it). Upon serving the steaming hot dish, a raw egg is cracked into the rice, along with butter and a few shakes of powdered sumac. The waiter mixes the ingredients thoroughly at your table, so while you watch, the egg cooks and coats the rice with a warm, rich texture.

Seafood fans might try the Mahi Kabob. Despite the name, this refers to salmon croquettes seared on every surface rendering them tender and pink inside. The fish comes with an enormous mound of green rice flavored with dill and fava beans, and a crunchy pancake of rice with a golden crust made of clarified butter, saffron and yogurt.

Desserts at Shamshiry are slightly fragrant with a hint of rose water. The saffron ice cream is worth sampling. If you prefer something less exotic, the cinnamon ice cream is also luscious. A perfect end to the meal is a steaming cup of Persian tea. Served in a glass mug, drink it black, or add a few sugar cubes.

Welcome Mat

Generations of homesick Iranians are fortunate to have Shamshiry, a restaurant with an attentive staff who cares deeply about their guests’ dining experience. The servers are happy to explain the variations of any dish to those unfamiliar with the cuisine. In the end, diners often feel like they’ve been invited to a home and welcomed to share this beloved culture. Besides being a great value, this food is a kid pleaser—they all seem to love kabobs. Clearly, restaurants like Shamshiry make living in Northern Virginia a comfortable new hometown for the international community.

*According to University of Pennsylvania’s Penn Language Center, Persian refers to a dialect and a Province in Iran, as well as the ancient culture of the region. Iran refers to the legal name of the largest country in that region.

Elegant Kitchen/Family Room Reconfiguration

IDEAL FOR ENTERTAINING

Sun Design’s Transitional-Style Interior Solution Dramatically Improves A 30 Year-Old Floorplan.

The most dynamic possibilities for an interior design solution may only be revealed in unexpected ways and over time. Denise Kidd, for instance, who has occupied a thirty year old center hall Colonial in Fairfax Station with husband Scott for over twenty years was certain the couple had “made the house their own” when they remodeled the kitchen fourteen years ago.

The makeover had everything Denise had wanted: a U-shaped counter with easy access to stove, refrigerator and clean-up; pleasant maple cabinets; a pantry in an adjacent family room.

Moreover, the plan discretely partitioned the kitchen from the family room; the cook’s work space from the breakfast nook.

The cook’s work triangle—according to the accepted space-planning literature of the day—needed to be protected. Yes, some parts of the floorplan were a bit boxy—but isn’t setting perimeters what good design is supposed to do?

But flash forward a few years, and what a difference a stunning realization can make.

Now empty-nesters, the Kidds had been gradually looking at ways to deepen their satisfaction with their home— which is situated in a lovely leafy setting, and frequently the site of extended family entertaining.

The large screen porch off the family room, for instance, was designed to segue into well-landscaped acreage complete with decking, hot tub and sports court. The window wall in the breakfast room, likewise, exists principally to emphasize the home’s visual connectivity to natural surroundings.

All these matters considered: why shouldn’t Denise’s kitchen also be an “open” affair, a place where the cook can interact with guests while still enjoying the omnipresence of a beautiful day?

Yet, interestingly, the revolution in Kidd’s thinking about her kitchen has humble origins, beginning when she decided that she simply wanted a wider, deeper refrigerator.

Seeing plainly that a more capacious model would not fit the tall, narrow cavity holding the current unit, she contacted a remodeling firm the couple had recently hired to remodel their bathrooms in search of advice.

In short order, designer Liz Lee of Sun Design Remodeling proffered a plan that would accommodate a deeper refrigerator, yet also pointed to larger horizons that might feasibly be pursued.

“Liz pointed out that we could increase the height in several rooms in the back of the house a full 12 inches by eliminating the dropped ceiling,” Kidd explains.

“I was intrigued at once, and when she worked up perspective drawings, I realized that the plan would open up sight lines and dramatically alter the dynamics of the entire space. It seemed right for Scott and me in this new phase of our life.”

Adds Lee: “Raising a ceiling usually makes a space seem much larger. Especially when you have the kind of indoor/outdoor connectivity this house was designed to profile.”

Working with rooms that suddenly seemed expansive, even generous, Lee’s plan deftly reconfigures the 90 square foot galley kitchen into a more confluent relationship with the breakfast nook and family room.

To gain floor space for new appliances, the designer relocates the doorway between the kitchen and dining room to the middle of the wall, installing a pair of frosted glass pocket doors for both privacy and added natural light.

Deleting the cumbersome pantry that had served as a space divider between the kitchen and the family room, the designer next opens up the space by wrapping an interior wall with custom-designed floor-to-ceiling cabinetry.

Situated between a of pair of archways linking the house from front to back,

“It’s a great serving station for the entire first floor including the screened porch,” Denise says. “It’s created logical, uncluttered circulation patterns we simply didn’t have before.”

Meanwhile, a substantially larger refrigerator, wine cooler and microwave now occupy formerly restricted kitchen floor space which opens invitingly into the family room.

Roughly paralleling the new cabinet console, a curvilinear multi-level surface that gracefully curves into the breakfast nook replaces the existing L-shaped counter. Equipped with a pair of stainless steel clean-up sinks and a dining counter with two stools, the new design functions as a casual mid-room gathering spot—steps from the breakfast table, an easy stride from the mudroom, new pantry and laundry room.

“People were always gathering at the counter anyway,” Denise recalls. “Liz’s plan simply makes it a lot easier for friends to drop in for a chat while I keep an eye on the meal.”

Better yet, the new interior allows Denise to take in the backyard views while standing at the sink.

Balancing the panoramic sight lines, Lee’s thoughtful finishwork gives the space its panache and brighter, lighter ambiance. A stone and glass tile backsplash unifies kitchen walls with the elegant new china cabinet. Crown molding and other detailing marry the bold new built-in to the home’s fundamentally formal interior design elements.

“The execution is pretty consistent with what has come to be known as transitional design style,” Lee observes. “Formal elements carefully integrated into an open plan allow for easier interaction within a cohesive aesthetic presentation.”

For Denise, that also means it’s easier to tend to the kitchen while also entertaining...and the timing couldn’t be better.

“We’re having fifteen for Christmas, and I’m ready,” Denise says. “It’s a good feeling.”

Foster Remodeling Collaborates With An Architect/Homeowner To Create An Expansive Lower-Level Solution

Sometimes it’s not that the lower-level is “unfinished”, but rather that the house itself is “incomplete”.

Consider a 4,500 square foot Craftsman-style home on a five acre lot in Great Falls. The rear elevation segues to a pool and patio. Yet there’s no same-level bathroom, no changing room, no convenient shower; just 1,500 square feet of ground-level insulated basement situated behind French doors.

Interestingly, the homeowner is an architect. He had sketched out a floor plan years ago for a fully developed lower level, but was too busy with other priorities to take the necessary actions.

Seventeen years later, after interviewing several contenders, he hires Chris Arnold, top designer at Foster Remodeling Solutions.

“I was presented with a floor plan and several key concepts,” Arnold explains. “The owner had been looking for someone with particular skills to help him realize the many details in a project of this scope.

By scope, Arnold means a suite of rooms that includes: a replica Irish pub, a billiards room, a media room, a fully-equipped fitness center and a wine cellar-- as well as pool changing area, bathroom and pool-access foyer.

As became apparent from the start, the pub would be one of the suite’s central gathering areas.

Borrowing a few ideas from photos of actual pubs, Arnold constructed replica beams and stained them the signature black of rough-hewn timber. The room’s existing steel vertical supports are, likewise, now clad in the same walnut-hued wood.

Searching for a festive central icon, Arnold proposed a 300 bottle wine rack neatly tucked behind glass doors under the stairway:

To unify the suite’s public spaces, the Foster team installed a prefinished oak hardwood flooring in the pub, billiards room and family room.

The bar counter is surfaced in Black Galaxy granite. Backbar cabinets are in cherrywood with a dark espresso stain. For contrast, mirrored wall panels, glass shelves and halogen lighting create a sparkling surface any pub aficionado will admire.

Other lower level chambers are equally well-conceived. From the pool, one passes through French doors into 135 square foot foyer tiled with slip-resistant porcelain. To the left: a shower room and changing area; on the right, the ever-convenient half bath.

The suite’s largest gathering spot is a nearly 400 square foot family room accessible from both the pool foyer and the pub. Featuring nine foot ceilings and four eight foot divided-light windows flanking a central fireplace, the room offers a multitude of home entertainment options.

The room’s defining focal point, however, is the hearth. Originally builder-grade brick, the new design employs cultured stacked fieldstone, a look consistent with interior’s “old country” ambiance.

The adjacent billiards room-- which features a three window bay-- was designed to accommodate a regulation (10’ x 5’) sized pool table.

There is also the 200 square foot fitness center situated for privacy and accessible only through a back hall. The facility features weight machines and a treadmill in a brightly lit room adorned with photos of the owner’s favorite sport: rugby.

Another year has arrived and roughly half the population uses this event to plan improvements to their lives through the iconic New Year’s Resolution. This time-honored tradition takes place with the best intentions for improvement, yet we always hear the anecdotes of those who break their resolutions within a couple of days, a week, or a month. In fact, a recent survey found that 88% of people fail to maintain their resolutions, even though 52% were confident that they would succeed when they started.

It doesn’t have to be that way. Success can be achieved with some thought and a bit of effort. After all, the New Year’s resolution is nothing more than a goal to improve one aspect of your life. If approached with a little planning, the improvement you desire can be yours.

As with any goal you set in business or in your family life, the best results are achieved through a well-developed strategy. Once you have your goal, establish steps to ensure your success. One doesn’t lose weight by simply stating the goal or even making a few minor adjustments. You have to know what you need to do to get to the goal line. Take the time to read and do some research. Learn what has worked for others and work those “best practices” into your strategy.

Other hints for success:

MAKE ONLY ONE RESOLUTION. Your chance for success is greater if you focus on one behavior. There’s always another year to fix another aspect of your life, meanwhile master the first.

BE REALISTIC AND SPECIFIC. Make your goal attainable, measurable, and include a timeline. “Lose 10 pounds by March 1” or “Size 8 by my reunion” have higher chances of success than “lose some weight” or “I’m going to lose 100 pounds this time.”

WRITE YOUR GOAL ON POST-ITS or file cards. Place them in places where you will see them often. Rewrite the goal every week so that you will continue to notice it afresh.

SHARE YOUR GOAL WITH YOUR SPOUSE or friend. Encourage them to share one with you. That way you are both accountable to one another and you can encourage each other when one of you needs a boost to keep going.

MOST OF ALL, DON’T THROW IN THE TOWEL IF YOU HAVE A SETBACK. We all slip once in a while. Just get back to your plan and keep on working toward your goal. You have a reason for making the change, and that reason should continue to motivate you positively.

Good luck and make this your best year ever!

OTHER NEW YEAR’S FACTOIDS

The ancient Babylonians made promises to their gods at the start of each year that they would return borrowed objects and pay their debts.

In 1943, Woody Guthrie’s resolutions included 33 ideas such as Take bath, Change socks, Play and sing good, Make up your mind.

Anybody see a pattern? Let this be the year we change the pattern and succeed in all our endeavors. ✤
DEAR BEWILDERED,

If this guy is such a catch, I am sure he is dating (or checking out) other women. You can't assume he is sleeping with them although he may do so if they were open to it as it seems. He's a guy!

Something is not right with this guy. You have not been wooed or romanced—and you are making all the effort. He should want to come to you. This is the reason this guy is not married. He is not willing to make the effort. I remember these guys—cute, smart and want sex! Yes, Friday night is reserved for second place (if you make the effort that is). Saturday night is for preference. Or he may have an event that he is committed to that he doesn't wish to divulge for some reason. There may be other women making advances as well.

You are not in an exclusive relationship so it's acceptable that he dates other women until you both have that discussion about being exclusive. What would it mean for you to be in an exclusive relationship and what are your expectations around that? It's a great exercise to get clear on that. For instance, if you were to be in an exclusive relationship, then you would no longer be looking online (and off!) and you would be seeing each other most Saturdays and part of Sunday and he would be coming to you how often? There may even be a discussion about where you both would live if the relationship moved towards engagement.

I do not see that you are even close to having that discussion with this man. Also, this discussion is best if it's initiated by him! Then you would surely know he is Motivated to Marry you. By the way, many of my Motivated to Marry couples in your age group get engaged within three to six months.

You want a guy to want you and be willing to make most the effort or you will be doing most of the work in the relationship. Is that what you want? You deserve better.

Yes, he may look good online (and in person!), however, he may be what I call an “almost, not quite” man. If you didn't contact him, you may never have heard from him again. Please stop initiating. It is not serving you. He is not your last hope and there are other guys who would treat you in the manner that you deserve—like a princess!

Warmly,

Coach Amy

Homeowners getting ready to list their property are, of course, eager to sell their home quickly and for the highest possible price. No one wants their home to linger on the market while they have to keep it polished day after day, but at the same time no seller wants to give their home away at a rock-bottom price. Local market conditions dictate how fast your home will sell and at what price, but there are steps sellers can take to maximize their chances at receiving a strong offer and, ideally, maybe even multiple offers. If you've placed your home on the market to test the waters or have decided only to sell if you're offered a contract above all other recent sales in your community, you won't necessarily garner several offers. Multiple offers tend to be made on properties that are in a sought-after area with few homes on the market, priced competitively in relation to other homes and in prime condition.

Pricing your home to entice buyers

You and your real estate agent should work together to determine what price will generate immediate interest in your home among buyers who have the financial wherewithal to purchase it. Your real estate agent should prepare a comparative market analysis (CMA) that evaluates the most recent sales prices of similar homes, homes that are currently on the market and homes that have been taken off the market because they didn't sell. In addition, your agent should have a strong knowledge of statistics not just in your overall market, but also in your neighborhood.

Before you can pinpoint an appropriate price you need to know whether or not homes are selling quickly in your community and what your competition is for buyers. You also need to understand the importance of pricing your home right from the start – we call that the “Golden Moment” in real estate. Buyers today have more information than ever at their fingertips and are savvy enough to understand that a home that's overpriced may not appraise for the full value of the contract. If sales prices are rising and homes are selling fast in your neighborhood, you may be able to get away with a slightly higher price than if prices are stable or falling and homes are taking 30, 60 or even 90 days or more to sell.

If homes that are similar to yours have recently experienced competition among buyers, you and your agent should discuss the option of pricing very slightly below market prices in the hope of generating excitement and several competitive offers. Keep in mind that if you use this strategy and only get one offer, you should be willing to accept the offer if it’s for full list price. You also need to be careful not to price your home so low that buyers assume there’s a problem with the property. Your agent can help you strike the right balance.

PRESENTING YOUR HOME TO ATTRACT BUYERS

Garnering multiple offers requires more than just a price adjustment. Real estate agents recently have pointed to what they call the “HGTV effect” on buyers: they expect every home they visit to be in prime condition and staged to television-quality perfection. Few buyers today are willing to look past any flaws or consider even minor cosmetic repairs, so even though sellers have the upper hand in some housing markets, they still need to make their home as attractive and well maintained as possible, particularly if they want to receive more than one purchase offer. Areas to pay attention to include the front door and exterior curb appeal, your kitchen and your bathrooms. Your agent can help you prepare your home to highlight its best features and reduce the appearance of any flaws. If you want to opt out of all this prep work, though, be aware that buyers might expect you to offer your home at a lower price and even then may ask for a further discount to cover the costs of painting, replacing carpet or making other repairs.

While you prepare your home to appeal to buyers, your real estate agent should be getting ready for a marketing blitz with stellar professional photos that showcase your home at its best and that help garner widespread attention on as many websites as possible. It’s tough to get multiple offers on a property unless a wide array of prospective buyers is aware that it has been listed for sale. Many agents actively network their listings with their colleagues and many let each other know when a home is about to come on the market in order to generate prelisting interest.

OVERCOMING THE OBJECTIONS OF POTENTIAL BUYERS

Real estate agents have special training that helps them understand how to identify what’s stopping a potential buyer from making an offer and what it would take to overcome that obstacle. Buyers today are more concerned than ever about making sure the home they buy will hold onto its value over the long term and that their housing payment will fit comfortably into their budget. Borrowers understand that if mortgage rates are higher when they lock in their loan, their payments will be higher than they would be at a lower rate. Depending on the limits of the loan program chosen by the borrowers, sellers can sometimes ease the burden for buyers by offering to pay some closing costs or to buy down the interest rate by paying one or more discount points. Offering financial assistance to buyers upfront is one way to encourage more buyers to consider your home, which could in turn generate more offers.

Burt Sharp
Mapping & Exploring
THE EARTH

Burt Sharp probably knows the world better than the vast majority of its inhabitants. After all, he spent his entire career measuring the globe from every conceivable angle. Upon retirement he just continued exploring. “You don’t find many people like me,” Burt explains. “I’ve traveled extensively on every continent except one since 1951.”

Burt grew up in West Virginia graduating from West Virginia University with a degree in forestry. Upon graduation his life became and remained focused on surveying, mapping the world. One lesson the military learned from World War II was that maps were woefully inadequate. The detail for vast land masses was simply lacking and using classical surveying techniques was the best way to improve knowledge in this area.

Also satellite use was just down the road, (Sputnik would be launched in 1957), and the mapping of the earth and its gravitational fields was high on the government’s priority list. So Burt traveled, measured, and collected data, first in the Caribbean, then Latin America and beyond. His work carried him to the most remote island in the world (Heard Island) and he negotiated with local officials from mayors to sheiks to establish tracking stations for satellite data.

Burt’s efforts eventually resulted in his being recognized as the Army Mapping Service’s Man of the Year for Effectiveness and Productivity. Asked about his early role in what ultimately resulted in the development of the Global Positioning System (GPS) we all use on a daily basis, he is reflective. “I was a bit player in a large-scale operation. Each of us was important and everything we did meshed together to increase the knowledge and precision with which we measure the earth. Everyone involved made a contribution.”

Burt retired in 1986 but 35 years of crisscrossing the globe had made an impression and he continued on the move. “I love hiking and exploring and there is so much to see,” he admits, “I believe I needed to spend some time looking for ‘me’. I have learned more since retirement and have had a better time seeing the world since retiring.”

His life has been an adventure these past 28 years. Sharp has traveled to 33 countries but has always been particularly drawn to the Himalayas, although he claims to be “a walker, not a climber.” He has taken part in the popular Annapurna Circuit trek, a 26-day hike around the world’s tenth highest mountain.

He volunteered for three years with the National Forest Service, working in the Teton National Park in Jackson Hole, Wyoming. He has visited the International Wolf Center in Ely, Minnesota, dogsledding and cross-country skiing, and camping out in temperatures that reached 33 degrees below zero. He has even explored the Arctic National Wildlife Preserve in Alaska, floating down the Noatak River for 12 days with a guide, a writer, and a National Geographic photographer. The tough part was moving camp frequently to “avoid the grizzlies.”

Even today Burt continues his busy life. He regularly spends two hours a day reading and studying philosophy, religion, and science. He also volunteers for the Shepherd’s Center of Oakton/Vienna, driving seniors to doctor appointments or to the grocery store. Chances are he’ll have no trouble finding his way there. ✿

Is Your Dog Safe from Ebola?

Q: Should I be worried about my dog if Ebola is found more often in the United States?

— Suzie D., Burke

A: As I write this answer, two months before publication, we’ve seen only a handful of cases of Ebola in humans in the US, and we’ve had only one quarantined dog, which never developed any illness associated with the virus. I hope there isn’t much change in that information before this magazine goes to press.

Unfortunately, much is unknown about Ebolavirus and our pets. I’ll give you what information I have, but I hope more will be known over the next few years.

In 2005, researchers found that dogs that lived in areas near outbreaks of Ebola in Africa developed antibodies to the virus. In addition, dogs that lived closer to the outbreak area were more likely to have antibodies against the virus than those that lived farther away. Antibodies are one of the immune system’s defenses against invading bacteria and viruses. They are proteins specifically designed to attach to the invader and signal other immune system cells or chemicals to destroy the organism. Doctors can test for antibodies to see if an individual has been exposed to an organism. For example, when we test for Lyme disease in dogs, we’re looking for antibodies against the Borrelia bacterium. Unfortunately, a positive antibody test doesn’t prove that the individual actually contracted the disease, only that they were exposed to the organism. In the aforementioned 2005 study of dogs in Africa, the researchers found antibodies, but couldn’t find any evidence of viral genetic material or proteins associated with the virus in the dogs’ blood. While not confirmed in this study, it appears dogs can mount an immune response against the virus, but the virus may not be able to replicate within dogs to cause disease or spread the virus through their stool or secretions.

Despite suspicions that dogs spread Ebola to humans in Africa, the documentation from those areas is circumspect and incomplete. There have been no proven cases of dogs or other domesticated animals spreading Ebolavirus, but there haven’t been any studies to examine whether infected dogs are able to pass the virus to humans, either. As you can see, there is little certainty when it comes to information about dogs and Ebola.

The reason Excalibur was euthanized in Spain and Bentley, the dog in Texas owned by a nurse who tested positive, was quarantined was that no knows with certainty that dogs can’t spread the virus after they have contact with a person who has been exposed. Bentley never got sick during his quarantine, and all three of his Ebola blood tests were negative throughout his 21-day adventure.

How would dogs get Ebolavirus from their pet parent anyway? The virus is spread only through the feces, blood, or bodily fluids of an infected individual. There is no evidence that Ebola can spread to others by aerosols (sneezing, spittle), food, or water. Dogs would have to be in immediate contact with an infected person’s blood or bodily fluids even to be exposed to the virus. Even if dogs do contact the virus, it appears they won’t get infected or be able to spread the virus themselves.

My answer to your question about whether you should worry about your dog contracting Ebola is a definitive “probably not.” It appears that the risk of dogs acquiring and spreading the disease is almost zero, but because studies haven’t been performed, we can’t say for sure that there’s no risk at all. We can only hope that any rare cases of Ebola in people will be quickly contained and the risk to the general population and our pets will remain very small.
KEEPING THE CAT AWAY FROM YOUR PLANTS

Q: My cats like chewing on any plants I have in the house. Now that my outdoor plants are inside for the winter, what can I do to prevent this behavior? — Lola C., Vienna

A: My cats love to chew our greenery, too, so I understand your pain. Most importantly, be sure none of your plants are toxic to your kitties. Search for “toxic plants” at ASPCA.org. Most plants aren’t terribly dangerous, but the worst offenders are lilies. We recommend that you not even bring lilies into a house with cats. Ingesting even a few pollen grains can cause fatal acute kidney failure.

Rather than keeping kitties from eating your greens, give them their own greens to eat. Plant a small container of “cat grass” that grows in a sunny windowsill. You can sometimes find cat-grass seeds at Whole Foods or Merrifield Garden Center. Such seeds are also available online at several websites, such as BotanicalInterests.com. Depending on where you buy the seeds, they are either a combination of oats and barley or 100% oats (Avena sativa). The sprouts grow quickly in a little pot of soil that’s watered every three to four days. The grass doesn’t live long, or the cats destroy the shoots quickly, so have a couple of pots in circulation. Not all cats vomit grass they eat, but many enjoy the crunch and maybe the chlorophyll.

NEW RETINA SCREEN FOR IMAC MAKES A DRAMATIC DIFFERENCE

Wall Street Journal’s tech analyst, Geoffrey Fowler writes that if you work with photographs (even if you are not a pro) or stare endlessly at spreadsheets, Fowler says this Retina Mac screen is like putting on new glasses with type and images seemingly printed on the screen. The 27-inch Retina screen iMac has 14.7 million pixels and begins at a salty $2,500.

One great feature of Microsoft’s OneDrive cloud storage systems (besides unlimited space) is that you can make all your files from OneDrive available offline. So if you are away from WIFI, or at an untrusted location, you can easily work on files. When you are again linked with WIFI, the OneDrive will sync up again, allowing you to share the newest version of the file with someone else, if you care to.

To do this in Windows: right click the OneDrive icon in the system tray. Select Settings. Check the box under Access OneDrive Files Offline.

NEWEST PLAYER IN TABLETS IS UNEXPECTED

It all started when AARP (the American Association of Retired Persons) offered learning seminars on technology. Scores of people showed up with tablets still in the box.

That sparked a question: Why is there not a tablet for the 70 million digitally challenged people among us?

After talking to tablet makers (and getting the boot), AARP decided to join with Intel for technology and Wal-Mart for distribution. Their new RealPad was born and is on shelves now. The one characteristic that separates it from the crowd: 24-7 real people help.

When you see lists of successful and less-successful companies, you may think successful leaders must be smarter than those that didn’t make the list, but in most cases that’s not true, one business strategist says.

To determine the right success factors, Inc. Magazine asked for the insights of Patrick Lencioni, president of the Table Group and author of 10 best-selling books on organizational management.

He says that intelligence, knowledge and product expertise are vastly overrated as the driving forces behind competitive advantage and success.

Meanwhile, the importance of organizational health is severely underrated. Organizational health includes management, strategy, operations, and a culture that fits them all together.

Academics and analysts have attributed business success to knowledge of their market and brilliant ideas — two qualities that are essential to success. But those qualities don’t account for continued success.

Leaders of longtime brand winning companies — Whole Foods and Southwest Airlines, for example — will tell you over and over that they value their corporate cultures more than any single strategy or intellectual property.

To develop organizational health, Lencioni advises leaders to be sure their top team is clear about the identity and direction of the company, and that they act in ways that indicate they are aligned.

These leaders should not tolerate any violation of corporate identity and culture.

Address problems like passive aggressiveness in meetings and back-channel second guessing.

Lencioni says the benefits of organizational health include lower hiring costs, higher employee retention, better word-of-mouth marketing and greater customer loyalty.

THE ARTS COUNCIL OF FAIRFAX COUNTY
AND THE FAIRFAX SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Have moved to Merrifield

Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Sharon Bulova, Chairman, and Linda Q. Smyth with County Executive Edward L. Long Jr. cut the ribbon on a new home for the Arts Council of Fairfax County and the Fairfax Symphony Orchestra.

The Arts Council of Fairfax County and the Fairfax Symphony Orchestra have moved to Merrifield, thanks to a space proffered by HITT Contracting, Inc. to the county.

Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova, Supervisor Linda Q. Smyth and County Executive Edward L. Long Jr. were joined by 60 guests celebrating the grand opening of the new office spaces conveniently located three blocks away from the Dunn Loring-Merrifield Metro Station on the Orange Line.

Attendees also celebrated the dedication of the Arts Council’s conference room to the memory of R. Dennis McArver, former board chairman and long-time supporter of both the Arts Council and Fairfax Symphony Orchestra. Mr. McArver passed away unexpectedly in September of 2013. The conference room is being furnished by donors to the R. Dennis McArver Memorial Fund.

The Arts Council of Fairfax County’s new address is 2667 Prosperity Avenue, Suite A, Fairfax, VA 22031. Directions to the Arts Council office can be found at artsfairfax.org/about/directions. The Fairfax Symphony Orchestra’s new address is 2667 Prosperity Avenue, Suite B, Fairfax, VA 22031.

REVENGE

REVENGE OF THE SPAM HATERS

Background: In November 2002, Detroit Free Press columnist Mike Wendland wrote a story about a man named Alan Ralsky. Ralsky had become a multimillionaire through marketing spam on the Internet. How much spam? His company sent up to 250 million e-mails a day. The story told readers about Ralsky’s new 8,000-square-foot, $740,000 home. The spammer bragged that one entire wing of the house was paid for by a single weight-loss e-mail.

Revenge Gone Wild! A group of spam haters decided to give Ralsky a dose of his own medicine. They posted his e-mail address and his phone number, and the mega-junkmailer got inundated with the very thing he had made his millions from—spam. And, no surprise: He was annoyed!

Ralsky later complained, “They’ve signed me up for every advertising campaign and mailing list there is. These people are out of their minds! They’re harassing me!”

REVENGE OF THE NON-WITNESS

Background: Jane White was upset that Jehovah’s Witness had come to her house once a month, every month, for 12 years. At first she politely told them that she wasn’t interested. Finally, after a visit on a Saturday in January 2002, she had had enough.

Revenge Gone Wild! White went to the group’s local Kingdom Hall in Peacehaven, England, the following morning, carefully timing her visit for the middle of the Sunday service. She banged on the door loudly, again and again, until someone answered, and then proceeded to offer members of the congregation religious literature that she had brought along.

“Of course I wanted to hand out free magazines just like the Jehovah’s Witnesses hand out,” she said. “But, nobody seemed to want them, though.” She continued her “mission” for 30 minutes until the police showed up and asked her to leave.

IF MURPHY WERE A...

...LAWYER

Alley’s Axiom: Justice always prevails... three times out of seven.

Green’s Rule: What the large print giveth, the small print taketh away.

First Law of Negotiation: A negotiation shall be considered successful if all parties walk away feeling screwed.

Power’s Principle: If the law is on your side, pound on the law. If the facts are on your side, pound on the facts. If neither is on your side, pound on the table.

Potter’s Parking Principle: The person you beat out of a prime parking spot will be the judge in your first case of the day.

Goulden’s Law of Jury Watching: If a jury in a criminal trial stays out for more than 24 hours, it is certain to vote not guilty, save in those instances when it votes guilty.

Bloom’s Law: The judge’s jokes are always funny.

Andrew’s Law: Honesty is almost the best policy.

...DOCTOR

Dolman’s First Law: The first time you screw up a colonoscopy, your patient will definitely be a lawyer.

First Rule for Interns: Never say, “I’m new at this,” to a patient.

The HMO Principle: The necessary procedure will not be allowed.

Edd’s Law of Radiology: The colder the X-ray table, the more of the body the patient is required to place on it.

The First Rule for Ob/Gyns: All babies are born between midnight and 5:00am.

Morse’s Law of Online Research: Any search for medical information will yield at least one porno site.

Law of Laboratory Work: Hot glass looks exactly the same as cold glass.

Stettner’s Law for Surgeons: Never say “oops,” while your patient is conscious.

Breezy’s Translation: When the doc says, “That’s interesting,” he really means, “Oops.”

CAPRICORN: You’ll have the chance to make considerable progress in 2015, but you’ll have to cope with unexpected situations. Don’t rush. If you keep calm, you’ll win.

AQUARIUS: This year might start off with a bang, but it will take your style to keep the year running in the right direction, even if tasks seem commonplace or mundane.

PISCES: Look for synergy. Your life needs it and your special project won’t fly without it. Find people or organizations you work well with, because you can’t do it alone.

ARIES: Attitude adjustment isn’t needed this year, you already have a positive outlook. Fine-tune your “vibration” to attract more success, and the results will be sensational.

TAURUS: As a tradition-minded person, you’re thinking it could be time to rethink your commitments. Know your role in dealing with co-workers, bosses and clients.

GEMINI: Inspiration will soon come to you in a meeting and provide meaningful insights. Don’t keep them to yourself. Decide what you can do to bring them to fruition.

CANCER: You and your partner have been focusing on a decision that now should be made. A new car, a vacation destination, save money? You’ll determine the best bet.

LEO: A status-quo-altering event will soon occur. It has the potential to bring greater satisfaction at work or a change in your living arrangement, maybe a home or apartment.

VIRGO: You like to feel grounded in your work and your life. So just think of yourself as an anchor in a sea of disarray. Stand strong in the face of uncertainty.

LIBRA: Productivity and a sense of accomplishment bring an era of cooperation with your co-workers. Do whatever you can to keep the ball rolling.

SCORPIO: January begins a new year, one in which you’ll have the confidence to solve a financial issue. Anyone could have one, but this one is yours to handle over time.

SAGITTARIUS: Interactions with the others will be stimulated and stimulating all through January. The relaxing atmosphere at your workplace helps you feel secure.

AQUARIUS: This month, you will feel compelled to create. Do it at work and away. Your creativity is broader than a professional effort. Isn’t it time to consider your decor?

PISCES: Getting along with the other gender is easier when you stop expecting them all to have the same strengths, manners and behaviors. Take a closer look at individuals.

ARIES: You’ll like February. The stars predict that the last two weeks will have many opportunities to relax and have fun. You’ve earned it so go ahead and enjoy it.

TAURUS: The end can be a good place to start. Embrace the closing of a chapter but stay alert to loose ends and unanswered questions. Open your eyes on Valentine’s Day.

GEMINI: Any event at any point of time has a downside, so face it and don’t give up. Even a negative outcome wouldn’t be the worst thing that could happen to you.

CANCER: In the past, you’ve adjusted well to surprises, but one that is heading toward you is different. As you accept it, your staying grounded will set a pattern for others.

LEO: Your worries dissipate as your strength and flexibility of spirit develop. Having a positive outlook is contagious and lightens the spirits of those around you.

VIRGO: At the beginning of the first ten-day period of this month, you will realize that you are standing at a crossroad. Among your options, there is definitely a positive one.

LIBRA: You are assuming a low-key persona, but right now, you want to learn more. When you say less, another person will reveal his or her thoughts on the subject.

SCORPIO: Some look at the scene and declare that there’s little to be done about it. You use your innate charm and ability win followers to tackle a difficult situation.

SAGITTARIUS: It can seem that when you are ready for entertainment and fun, your friends aren’t available. Inviting a new pal or friend could bring surprising fun.

CAPRICORN: There will be outside factors to challenge you and obstruct your path. You have a talent for handling them, but be careful not to create extra impediments.
Since 1990, we’ve been designing and building award-winning renovations and new homes. While the quality of our work defines us, the true measure of success is creating satisfied customers for life.
